Two Maritime Unions Walk Out in New York

Platform Reflects Confidence in '58 Win by Democrats

Delegates Aware Vote-Getting Planks May Become Obligations

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

La Crosse — A more deliberate and careful platform than the party has offered in modern times will be the blue-print of Democrats of Wisconsin in their bid for capture of the state government in the fall elections. Convention delegates usually function as the cheer-leaders of their cause and their predictions of victory are as routine as the brass bands and the classical waving banners in the convention hall.

But these delegates appeared at least half-convinced they are on the threshold of a breakthrough in this historically Republican state, and aware that vote-catching sentences in their platform may become performance obligations after the election. A theme of caution ran throughout the platform deliberations, speeches and resolutions.

The theme was most noticeable in the attitude of Sen. Gaylord Nelson of Madison, who will be the party's ticket leader this summer and fall as uncontested candidate for the gubernatorial nomination. Nelson declined to make an unequivocal pledge against the sales tax as a method of buttressing the state treasury. The state will need more revenue in future years, all students of state affairs admit. He said he will insist, if elected, upon a thorough-going review of the state tax burden upon all interests and classes, and "let the chips fall where they may."

Nelson and others cannot interrupt the momentum of the party's propaganda against the sales tax, which Sen. William Proxmire has demonstrated is a useful club against the Republicans. The current party platform again assails the Republicans for drifting toward sales tax for state budget-balancing. But the platform must be read in the context of Nelson's position.

As one observer put it, "the Republicans (in their recent

1,500 Families Flee Flood in W. Terre Haute

Nearly 40 Per Cent Of Town Covered; No Casualties Listed

Terre Haute, Ind.—About 1,500 West Terre Haute families fled their homes early today when frothing floodwaters of the Sugar creek overwhelmed an earthen levee a mile upstream from where it empties into the Wabash river.

The 4,000 residents had been alerted all night, and civil defense officials said there were no casualties although water covered nearly 40 per cent of the town.

A crest of 28 feet in the Wabash was predicted for this afternoon, but the river had dropped to 27 feet at 10 a. m. after hitting a high of 27.7 two hours earlier. Authorities were not certain if the crest had been reached or if the levee break was responsible for the lowering level.

Troops Offer Help
National guard troops, police and volunteers helped citizens bundle belongings into trucks, and patrols were established to guard against looters.

Water three feet deep flowed across heavily traveled U. S. 40 in West Terre Haute and also over U. S. 150, closing both roads. The main Wabash river bridge remained open on U. S. 40 linking the community with Terre Haute proper.

Engineers inspected the main Wabash bridge on U. S. 40 con-

If Dispute Continues 700 Vessels on East and Gulf Coasts May be Tied Up

New York — Two maritime unions struck today, refusing to sail without contracts.

The walkout of 1,700 engineers and 10,000 unlicensed tanker seamen could tie up nearly 700 American-flag ships operating out of east and gulf coast ports.

The striking unions, the Marine Engineers Beneficial association and the National Maritime union, said negotiations would pick up again later in the day. Meanwhile, they said, "no contract, no sailing."

The engineers are employed on 448 dry cargo and passenger ships, the 10,000 seamen on 231 oil tankers.

There is no large passenger ship berthed here now and none is expected to sail before Wednesday. The walkouts do not affect ships at sea.

The marine engineers struck after the union rejected a contract offer by the dry cargo and passenger ship operators.

The strike by the tanker seamen was unexpected. The NMU had tentatively approved a 3-year contract covering about 30,000 unlicensed seamen employed on the dry cargo and passenger ships.

A third union, the American Radio association, bargained through the night and into the daytime hours with shipowners on behalf of radio operators.

The settlement reached after an all night bargaining session does not provide for any specific pay raises or increased overtime benefits. It does contain substantial improvements in vacation benefits, negotiators said.

Better Conditions
The agreement also improves conditions for radio men aboard ships and provides for two wage revenues, at the election of either party, it was said.

Under the old contract the radiomen received $569 monthly for a 40-hour work week.

There was no picketing or disorder reported along the waterfront in connection with the walkout by the other unions.

A spokesman for the engineers' union said there was no plan to set up picket lines. A decision to do so could affect trucking deliveries.

The engineers' spokesman said the men would remain aboard their ships to assure maintenance but would refuse to sail.

The MEBA negotiations broke down over four major items, the union said. They were:

Increases in retirement pensions from $100 to $250 a

Congressmen and Wives Aboard Liner On Initial Voyage

New York — Fourteen congressmen and their wives and a half dozen other government officials sailed into New York today after a free cruise—as guests of the steamship company.

They were among about 300 invited, non-paying passengers aboard the new Grace liner Santa Rosa as it made its inaugural voyage from Newport News, Va., to New York.

A spokesman for the line said it's a long-standing custom among ship lines to take government officials as guests on inaugural runs.

The new 2,000-ton passenger liner sailed from Newport News Saturday night.

The spokesman said the government guest list was made up largely of those on the house merchant marine and fisheries committee and others who "realize the importance of the merchant marine."

Among the nine Republican and five Democratic candidates and their wives who made the initial run were Rep. and Mrs. John W. Byrnes, Green Bay, Wis.

U. S. Families Ready To Leave Lebanon

Embassy Offers Transportation To Staff Members' Families

BY TOM MASTERSON

Beirut — American families had the go-ahead to move out of Lebanon today as the anti-government rebels kept up a determined, bloody stand before U. N. Secretary Dag Hammarskjold arrives to direct his international team of observers.

Bitter fighting broke out in the capital Saturday and continued yesterday until government security forces pinned down the insurgents in their strongholds at the center of Beirut. Heavy shooting stopped by noon, but sporadic firing and bombing were heard the rest of the day.

No Aliens Hurt
A bomb exploded across the street from the American University of Beirut this morning. Eyewitnesses reported there were no casualties.

In the gravest warning to Americans in the Middle East since the 1956 Suez crisis, the U. S. embassy offered free transportation out of the strife-torn country to dependents of embassy staff members. The

De Gaulle to See Macmillan

British and French Leaders to Confer Before Month Ends

Paris — Premier De Gaulle will confer with British Prime Minister Macmillan before the end of this month.

Official sources said no precise date has yet been set for the meeting, but June 27 is mentioned frequently.

It will be De Gaulle's first meeting with a top leader of the western alliance since taking office. It will precede by about a week his scheduled talks with Secretary of State Dulles July 5.

Review Relations
The French-British meeting is expected to review relations between the two countries and to give Macmillan a chance for first-hand investigation of just how De Gaulle views the international situation.

Although the general has pledged his allegiance to the western alliance, it is understood he foresees a more independent role for France within it.

De Gaulle returned today from a country weekend to find his desk piled high with North African problems.

De Gaulle's designated representative in North Africa, General Raoul Salan, officially took over the resident minister's office in the Algiers government headquarters building today. But said, "Nobody knows what will happen in the 1960 elections and was planning a second trip to Algeria within the next month chances and extending this authority for five years."

Favors 3-Year Reciprocal Pact

Washington — Sen. Styles Bridges (R-NH) today joined Sen. William F. Knowland (R-Calif) in a drive to limit to three years the extension of the reciprocal trade law.

Bridges, who heads the senate Republican policy committee, said he will not go along with a house-passed 5-year extension which President Eisenhower has asked congress to approve.

The present Republican administration will be in power in another 2½ years," Bridges said. "Nobody knows what will happen in the 1960 elections and was planning a second trip to Algeria within the next month chances and extending this authority for five years."

Report Goldfine Paid New York Bill For Adams as Case Was Considered

Washington — House probers turned up evidence today that higher-ups in the federal trade commission vetoed a government expert's recommendation for criminal prosecution of Bernard Goldfine, benefactor of Sherman Adams, President Eisenhower's No. 1 aide.

Washington — House investigators produced evidence today that industrialist Bernard Goldfine paid bills for Sherman Adams at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel in New York at about the time a government agency was closing out a case against Goldfine.

Adams is President Eisenhower's No. 1 aide. The Waldorf bills for Adams and Mrs. Adams came to $267.05.

They were run up at the plush New York hotel in January and February, 1954.

Settling Complaint
In the same period, investigator Francis X. McLaughlin told a house subcommittee, the federal trade commission was settling a complaint against Goldfine's Northfield mills. The subcommittee also heard that a Goldfine firm is again under investigation and—from FTC officials — that records with bearing on allegations of mislabeling by a Goldfine company had been destroyed. But the officials said the records had been destroyed by inadvertence of another government agency and no information was lost, since it had been transcribed into other documents still on file.

Acting FTC Chairman Robert T. Secrest and Harvey T. Northfield knew that some material it purchased as cashmere was actually reprocessed cashmere.

Not Approached
"During an investigation of the another mill," he said, "we found this concern sold to Northfield interests some stock at marked cashmere, which should have been designated reprocessed cashmere. We do not know whether Northfield knew it was reprocessed. That is under investigation."

Secrest declared Adams had never approached him regarding this matter before the FTC.

He said persons dealing with any matter before the FTC calls to senators or others apparently to let FTC personnel know they are acquainted with such persons.

Goldfine got someone on the phone, Hannah said—he did not know who it was—and reported that he had been well received by the FTC.

Hannah said that the new investigation concerning Goldfine's Northfield mills centers on the question of whether Northfield knew that some material it purchased as cashmere was actually reprocessed cashmere.

Not Approached
"During an investigation of the another mill," he said, "we found this concern sold to Northfield interests some stock at marked cashmere, which should have been designated reprocessed cashmere. We do not know whether Northfield knew it was reprocessed. That is under investigation."

Secrest declared Adams had never approached him regarding this matter before the FTC.

Humphrey Calls for New Foreign Policy

Minnesota Senator Backs New Rockefeller Report as Design To Meet World's Economic Needs

BY ERNEST B. VACCARO

Washington — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) called today for a new U.S. foreign economic policy, to replace one he said "is geared to the needs of 1938."

He said a Rockefeller report made public last night offered "a grand design" for a new policy to meet the needs of a modern world in which "newly independent, underdeveloped nations will play a vital role."

Sen. George D. Aiken (R-Vt.) agreed that the report points up a need for policy changes. But he said it should have placed more emphasis on what he called "the major target" of higher wages for foreign workers to increase their purchasing power.

The report, the third of a series by the special studies project of the Rockefeller Brothers Fund, Inc., among other things called for:

1. Making the reciprocal trade agreements program "a permanent part of our national policy" with new discretion to the president to allow for consideration of broad domestic and foreign policy interests.

2. Long-term, low-interest rate loans, plus tax incentives, to induce private enterprise to increase its investment in the development of underdeveloped nations in coordination with government activities in this field.

3. Encouragement of regional structures aimed at the progressive elimination of trade barriers as a step "in the direction of freeing world trade."

4. International agreements to halt sharp price fluctuations in exports, especially in cases where such exports as coffee, oil or tin play an important part in the national income of a country.

"Regional development, banks and organizations may prove a most fruitful method of relating regional needs to the various forms of international assistance available," the report said, adding:

"Some of our aid can be most effectively channeled through the existing institutions of the United Nations. In addition, consideration could be profitably given to the establishment of an international development authority to provide added impetus to world-wide economic growth."

The report came as the senate finance committee prepared to start hearings next Friday on the house-passed 3-year extension of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act. In the foreign policy field, also, senate and house conferees will meet Tuesday to adjust differences over the administration's $3,712,900,000 program of military and economic assistance abroad.

People Top Potential

Its publication coincided also with release of a lengthy state department study of Russian economic aid programs already including 15 countries. The department said the Soviet "economic subversion campaign" may be extended to other underdeveloped countries.

Aiken, like Humphrey a member of the senate foreign relations committee, said "the greatest potential wealth of the world is the 2½ billion people in the underdeveloped nations," and added:

"Our foreign economic policy should place heavy emphasis on projects that will provide jobs calling for decent wages that will increase living standards and mass purchasing power."

Humphrey agreed with Aiken on these objectives which will be included in a projected senate foreign relations committee review of foreign economic policy.

Geared to 1938

"Our foreign economic policy of 1938 is geared to the needs of 1938," Humphrey said. "We need an Eisenhower doctrine that charts a new path and helps create a new epoch of progress."

"This administration, with all its business men, certainly should know how to integrate private capital with public investment."

The report said that "a great deal depends on developing an international structure which reflects the interdependence of countries, large and small, industrialized and less developed."

"An essential component will be an increasingly liberal United States trade policy, which will permit other nations to sell in American markets," he added.

Billy Graham Makes Plea for Revival Spirit

Large Crowd Hears Evangelist at Final San Francisco Session

BY RICHARD A. MEISTER

San Francisco — Billy Graham, who has ended his 7-week evangelistic appearances here, wants the fervor to linger.

"Get into that church," Graham pleaded. "If you wait a week or two, Satan will take advantage of you."

He declared to the throng packed into the 16,500-seat arena that "some of you are like Judas. You are greedy and will sell your soul and your future for a few pieces of silver. Some of those who steal from God are those with the most money."

Seeks Donations

Turning to another matter of money, the North Carolina preacher said advance contributions and weekday offerings for the free meetings might not have met all expenses of the crusade, which he estimated at $400,000.

As assistants toured the aisles collecting offerings, he asked "that you give generously to make sure all expenses are met." Totals were not immediately available.

Yesterday's overflow crowd, which arrived so early the meeting began a half-hour ahead of schedule, swelled to attendance for the seven weeks to 696,325. The 570 going forward in "decisions for Christ" brought that total to 25,575.

After visiting Yosemite National Park Tuesday with his 13-year-old daughter Virginia, Graham will rest until Sunday when he will speak at a Seals stadium rally here.

Man Gets Father's Day Gift of Triplet Girls

Joliet, Ill. — Mrs. Ruth Bruno, 20, of Lockport presented her husband John, 25, with three Father's Day gifts yesterday—triplet girls.

The girls, weighing 3 pounds 15 ounces, 3 pounds 6 ounces and 2 pounds 4 ounces, were born at the Silver Cross hospital and reported in good condition.

So was Bruno, who said he and his wife were expecting only one. The girls are the Bruno's first children.

ABC-TV Drops Lodge Interview by Wallace

Film Cancelled by Television Network Because of Request to Delete Remarks

New York — The American Broadcasting company last night canceled a filmed interview with U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge.

The ambassador, said the network, had insisted upon editing certain portions of the interview. ABC said that to have permitted the deletions would have constituted editorial censorship in violation of company policy.

Dr. Robert Hutchins, president of the Fund for the Republic took issue with ABC and defended Lodge. The interview was to be part of a current series on the program, "The Ambassador Interview." The series is produced jointly by the Fund and Newsmakers Productions.

Within His Rights

"In refusing to allow an official of a television network to determine what statements of his should be broadcast, Ambassador Lodge is perfectly within his rights."

The Fund president said previous programs in the series were revised with the network's approval.

A spokesman for the U.S. delegation at the United Nations said Lodge would have no comment.

Made Promise

Wallace's comment was: "The facts as stated in Dr. Hutchins' statement are accurate and I fully share his point of view."

John Daly, ABC vice president for news and public affairs, said Newsmakers Productions had guaranteed Lodge the right to edit the interview.

Although this was contrary to ABC policy, Daly said, ABC agreed "that the interview content could be reviewed in the light of events as of the day of the telecast."

Daly said ABC agreed with Lodge on one deletion but could not agree with the ambassador that other changes involved "national security and the public interest."

Daly added: "We deeply regret any embarrassment to the Ambassador Lodge resulting from the action of Newsmakers Productions and the Fund for the Republic."

It was not disclosed which phases Lodge objected to. Among other things, he said in the interview as it was originally filmed that the United States should give up the idea of winning popularity abroad and should seek international respect instead.

Lodge also said in the film that the Russians "believe in protracted conflict to the bitter end."

He added: "They don't want to make a big deal with the United States, a global settlement with the so-called capitalist countries."

A movie was substituted for the interview.

Woman Says Her Son Had Robbed Poor Boxes Since He Was Seven

New York — A woman appeared in felony court yesterday and said her 20-year-old son has been robbing poor boxes since he was 7.

Mrs. Mary Knudsen of Brooklyn wept as she talked to Magistrate Manuel Gomez about her son, John.

The youth was arrested Saturday in Holy Cross Roman Catholic church on Manhattan's west side by police concealed there to solve a series of thefts.

Knudsen, who carried pliers and a pair of tweezers, reportedly told detectives he got bills from the poor boxes with tweezers if pliers didn't work.

He was arraigned on a charge of possessing burglar tools and sent to Bellevue hospital for mental observation.

Colonel Fails To Get Release Of 9 Soldiers

East German Reds Demand Negotiation On Government Level

Berlin — The United States failed today—in its second contact with communist East Germany—to win the release of nine U. S. army men held prisoner.

Responsible diplomatic sources said the communists insisted again that the helicopter case be negotiated on a government-to-government level.

East Germany's foreign ministry rejected a compromise formula on protocol put forward by the American negotiator, U. S. army Col. Robert B. McQuail of Bluefield, W. Va.

In a 40-minute meeting at the East Berlin ministry, McQuail reportedly presented credentials from Gen. H. I. Hodes, the U. S. commander-in-chief for Europe. He also indicated he was negotiating with the approval of the state department.

Seeking international prestige for their regime, the communists apparently demanded that McQuail show diplomatic accreditation.

Accompanied by Soldiers

McQuail walked into the East Berlin ministry at noon. He was accompanied by Maj. Raymond J. McCrory, Jr., of Wauwatosa, Wis., assigned to the U. S. liaison mission in Potsdam, and three soldiers who kept newsmen from getting close enough to ask questions.

The first contact was made Saturday by McQuail, chief liaison officer to the Russian army in East Germany. It reversed a 9-year U.S. policy of no direct dealings with the East Germans.

Diplomatic sources said McQuail would seek the release of the American prisoners with a new procedural formula worked out by the army and the U. S. state department.

The prisoners—eight officers and a sergeant from the Third armored division in West Germany—were seized by the Reds June 7 when their helicopter strayed across the Iron Curtain in a thunderstorm.

Ask Negotiations

As the price for release of the Americans, the East Germans are demanding negotiations on an intergovernmental level that would give their regime more prestige.

East Germany's negotiator, Deputy Foreign Minister Otto Winzer, promised McQuail a quick settlement of the helicopter case if they could show that he was competent to deal on a governmental basis.

Allied sources said McQuail will tell the East Germans he is authorized to negotiate for the United States—but attempt to keep the talks on a military rather than a diplomatic level.

Washington hopes in this way to avoid any implication of diplomatic recognition of the East German regime.

Developer of Peace Rose Dies in France

Antibes, France — Francis Meilland, world-famous rose grower who developed the popular Peace rose, died here yesterday at the height of the French Riviera's rose season. He was 46.

His room was banked with his favorite flower.

Meilland, who also developed the President Truman, and Princess of Monaco roses, turned out the Peace rose in 1943. Basically white to lemon yellow with a pink edge, the Peace rose deepens in color as it grows older. It is popular in the United States and Europe. It is called Gioia in Italy, Gloria Dei in Germany and Mme. A. Meilland elsewhere in Europe.

British Paratroopers Sent to Cyprus by Jet Plane in Troop Buildup

3,000 Expected to Land to Bolster Permanent Island Force of 25,000

BY WEBB MCKINLEY

Nicosia, Cyprus — British jet transports loaded with paratroopers began streaking into Cyprus today in the second phase of a troop buildup to keep peace on this Mediterranean island.

By the time the emergency air lift is completed, about 3,000 paratroopers will be here bolstering the permanent British force of 25,000.

The first 900 men flew in Saturday. The rest of the soldiers in the 16th Independent Parachute brigade are expected by Thursday. In addition a British force of commandos was due to set sail from Malta on the cruiser Bermuda.

The paratroopers arrived as fears were being voiced here and abroad that the strife between Turkish and Greek Cypriots may spread into a conflict that could crack the eastern arm of the North Atlantic alliance.

In Turkey, mobs cried "partition or death." This was their demand that Britain divide the island between the 400,000 Greek Cypriots and the 140,000 Turks.

The Turks bitterly oppose the Greek demand that this island—a British Crown colony—be turned over to Greece.

Foreshadowing the danger ahead for NATO, Greece suddenly pulled its troops out of Izmir, Turkey, last Saturday. Officials charged that Greek soldiers were being menaced by mobs. Greece and Turkey make up NATO's important eastern flank. Izmir is NATO's southeast European headquarters.

A jittery calm prevailed throughout Cyprus as the island awaited Britain's announcement—expected tomorrow in London—of its plan for the future of Cyprus. British curfews were imposed last Thursday after six days of rioting and fighting that killed 14 Greeks and two Turks.

Trapeze Artist Goes Back to Her Act on Night After Fall

New Orleans — Determined Betty Pasco returned to her trapeze act at Pontchartrain beach last night despite a 40-foot fall the night before.

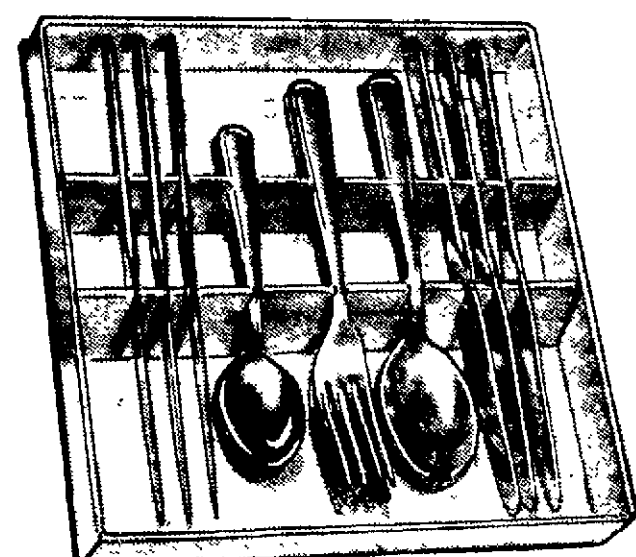

The pretty blonde aerialist fell when her foot slipped from a harness as she attempted a 1-foot hang. Her husband, who was standing below, managed to catch her and break the fall. However, her head struck the concrete base of the trapeze and she suffered a bruised shoulder.

Mrs. Pasco didn't attempt the 1-foot hang last night.

Chance of Interception Halts Canadian Flight of Soviet Jet

Vancouver, B.C. — The possibility of interception by U.S. air jet fighters yesterday put a damper on a courtesy flight by the Soviet Union's TU104 jet airliner on exhibition here.

The plane, biggest attraction at Centennial air show, was scheduled to fly 75 miles from Sea Island airport to Victoria, the British Columbia capital on Vancouver island.

It flew instead in the greater Vancouver area after Royal Canadian air force officials said they had been unable to get exact assurances from the U.S. that the Soviet jet could not be challenged by U.S. fighters should it cross the international boundary.

A spokesman for the 25th air division of the U.S. air defense command at McChord air force base near Tacoma, Wash., said he had no knowledge of the TU104's proposed flight. He indicated that any comment the greater Vancouver area.

Net Family Incomes In Appleton Show Increase in 1957

$5 Million Total Increase

(Special to Post-Crescent)
New York — Net incomes in Appleton during the last year, after deduction of personal taxes, came to $89,317,000, compared to $84,172,000 the previous year, according to a Sales Management survey.

This was equivalent to earnings per household of $6,335, obtained by dividing total income by total number of households. It compares with the average in other parts of the United States, $5,921 per household, and with the Wisconsin average of $5,766.

Just how good a year it was in Appleton, despite the last quarter slump, is brought home by the fact that local residents, with only .0272 percent of the national population, accounted for .03 percent of the national income.

With more money available to them for spending, they bought freely, making 1957 a top year for retailers in general.

OASI Amendments Haven't Cut Local Relief Loads

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison — The widely hailed 1956 amendments which liberalized the old age and survivors insurance program had no significant effect in cutting the relief caseload or disbursements of state and local governments.

That is the conclusion of the state division of public assistance, in a 13-month review of the fiscal effect of the OASI changes with respect to public assistance liability.

The amendments removed only 343 cases, less than 1 percent, of the beneficiaries of the four categories of public assistance operated by the state and its localities with federal assistance. The amount of public assistance reduction was about $160,000 a year.

Greatest In Cities
The most pronounced effects in saving local relief disbursements was in cities, where federal social security program coverage is greatest. The conclusion of the study is that general relief categories of the state will continue to provide assistance to individuals without federal social security eligibility.

The major changes in the old age and survivors insurance provisions of 1956 included the addition of disability benefits for qualifying disabled persons from 50 to 64, a reduction in the retirement age of women to 62 years, and extensions of child benefits to disabled children 18 years of age or over. Normally children are disqualified for benefits after age 18.

Story of a wish come true, told by
C. C. Guell, Vice President, Thorp Finance Corporation

a business born of confidence in people

Happy birthday after all!

a Thorp customer helped it happen . . .

A bike! That's all Jimmy wanted for his birthday. He needed it, too — for school, for wholesome fun, and to get a newspaper route so he could start saving for college. But how could Dad afford the bike — snowed under by regular monthly payments, plus bills for furnace repairs and his youngest's tonsilectomy.

He hated to face his boy on that birthday. Then his good friend in the shop told him how easily he'd always borrowed money for emergencies from Thorp — and recommended he see Thorp Finance for a loan. So Dad went to his local Thorp office manager, who welcomed him warmly, discussed his problem with friendly understanding . . . and lent him the cash he needed to clear up his debts and make that boy's birthday one he'll never forget! The terms? Just one small repayment a month fitted to Dad's ability to pay.

But don't you wait for a recommendation from one of Thorp's thousands of friends and customers. Whenever you need $50 to $5000 or more, simply telephone or visit any one of Thorp's 70 offices. The manager wants to help you.

GOP Begins Push for Mitchell As No. Two

Republicans May Try to Woo Labor Votes With Liberal Vice President

BY WILLIAM S. WHITE

Washington — By every sign a 1960 vice-presidential buildup for Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell is being powerfully launched by the Nixon-Dewey controllers of the Republican party.

If an Operation Mitchell is not in motion, it can only be said that rarely have so many coincidences pointed the same way.

For Mitchell is being pushed forward, with every publicity apparatus available, to a front-and-center position on labor legislation. This is being done by frankly thrusting aside—and infuriating—the senior Republican senators who are the party's normal spokesmen in this field.

Even before Mitchell had been put so far out in front, high administration figures had passed the word: "Mitchell looks good to Eisenhower for No. 2 in '60." At that earlier date, the secretary's name was responsibly given to this correspondent as at the top of a list of six "possibilities" for the vice-presidential nomination President Eisenhower was discussing with his associates—including Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

The other names on the memorandum were those of Robert B. Anderson, secretary of the treasury; Fred A. Seaton, secretary of the interior; William P. Rogers, the attorney general; Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., chief of our mission to the United Nations, and Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, national head of the Red Cross.

Time Element
In this whole matter it is important to bear in mind the element of time. For the list of six possible running mates, with Nixon as the presidential candidate, was made available before Sen. William F. Knowland's near-disaster in the California primaries for governor.

Knowland ran on a "right-to-work" platform bitterly resented by labor leaders. His prospective defeat in California governor's race by Democrat Edmund (Pat) Brown has gone very far toward shrinking the list of six GOP vice-presidential possibilities down to one—Mitchell.

Influential Republican "pros" now concede not only that some appeal to labor must be made—but that it would best come from a vice-presidential candidate especially agreeable to the urban and largely eastern Catholic voters.

Mitchell is urban and eastern—from New Jersey—and a Catholic.

True, he has thus far been pictured, in the confused legislative in-fighting, as being for a "harder" labor bill than are the Democrats. This, however, need not be—and almost certainly will not be—the final and decisive image left by the secretary.

Stir Up Matters
For immediate partisan Republican advantage would best be served by so stirring up matters as to lead to the failure of any labor legislation at all in this session. And whatever his motive, Mitchell certainly has been stirring up matters.

To have no legislation would detract the harsh necessity of putting the Republicans generally on record in a congress-sional election year. Specifically it would avoid committing them either to Knowland's "tough" approach or to the milder one favored by the Nixon-Dewey Republicans.

Finally, there is this powerfully suggestive indication that Operation Mitchell is indeed going on just as it seems to be: Mitchell is an old protege of Former Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, and Dewey is an influential adviser of Nixon.

If Dewey could have had his way, Mitchell would have been President Eisenhower's secretary of labor from the beginning. The late Sen. Robert A. Taft vetoed an original Mitchell appointment because Mitchell was a "Dewey man." The secretary entered the cabinet only after Taft had died and after the departure from the post of Martin Durkin.

Now It's Sherman Adams

The Eisenhower administration may yet founder on a pile of hotel receipts, rail and airline bills, and restaurant checks.

Now it's Sherman Adams, who has the title of "Assistant to the President" and is considered by many the most powerful man in the government next to Mr. Eisenhower himself, who has been brought down by the searching guns of the congressional committee investigating unethical practices by government employees. Adams is desperately trying to explain away the fact that he permitted a New Hampshire businessman, Bernard Goldfine, to pay $2,000 worth of hotel bills for him. A member of the committee says there is evidence that Goldfine picked up a tab of $1,300 after a 3-day stay by Adams at a Plymouth, Mass., hotel.

Adams' explanations are as weak as all the others that have come from officials who have been caught with their stupidity showing — from Federal Communications Chairman Doerflinger who let the radio-TV broadcasters buy him a trip around the country, from FCC Member Mack who resigned after his shenanigans in the Miami TV case were exposed, from the ICC member who used his position to help friends in the Chicago Parmalee case, from the various big and small fry who were exposed in the mink coat-deep freeze scandals of the Truman administration. They are explanations and nothing more — they do not change the facts, and the facts are damning.

So Sherman Adams, assistant to the president of the United States, thought it was all right to accept expensive hotel accommodations from a businessman friend? He thought his friend rented the rooms on a year-round basis, and that is supposed to make everything all right. So Sherman Adams, the man who has more power over patronage appointments and the way agencies' proposals and budgets are handled at the White House than anyone else except the big boss, thinks he did nothing wrong when he "inquired" of the Securities and Exchange commission and the Federal Trade commission about government cases against companies owned by Goldfine? If Adams truthfully doesn't know that an "inquiry" from a man in his position drops into the middle of that kind of case with the concussion of a blockbuster, he shouldn't be permitted to wander around Washington without a guardian.

When Mr. Eisenhower was running for office he promised an administration that would be "as clean as a hound's tooth." In his five-plus years in office he has kept that promise amazingly well — far better than most candidates' promises are kept — even to the extent of dumping his secretary of the air force who was a close personal friend, of demanding resignations from a host of others the minute Congress had pinned them to the wall. Just how dedicated the president is to this ideal of absolute integrity among his associates is now up against its sternest test.

It is not that Adams, or any of the others, did anything crooked. It is just that they were abysmally, mystifyingly stupid. How able, successful men can accept high government office with obvious power to influence the deliberations of quasi-judicial public agencies, and then permit themselves to become involved in these silly scrapes, is something we will never understand.

Adams should resign, and if he doesn't he should be fired.

People of Colfax Will Rebuild

The people of Colfax are cleaning up and preparing to rebuild their community which suffered a terrific loss in the recent tornado which swept through that area.

The announcement of plans came a week after the storm struck and may be said to be based upon the sober second thoughts of the people. The day after the tornado, it is reported, most of the residents of this village of 1,044 were seriously considering departure from Colfax. Now, however, with the first shock worn off the plans are all for rebuilding better than ever. It is easy to understand how people looking at their devastated town would think it could never be restored. But the volunteer help that has come to them has lifted community morale and now Mayor Wilhelm Everson says the "spirit in our community is surprisingly good."

Many farmers living near Colfax have been working in the volunteer repair crew since the storm. Now it is possible to see the end and the people are greatly cheered. They have turned down offers for temporary houses on the ground that they do not want a shanty town. They are going to rebuild good, permanent buildings.

The state of Wisconsin and the federal government have acted promptly to supply such aid as is legally possible. However, the most effective immediate help was that of the Red Cross, an organization trained in disaster relief and not hampered by legal red tape.

Wisconsin has been fortunate over the years in its freedom from disasters associated with floods and storms. Wisconsin people often have indicated gratitude for their own good fortune by contributing to people in disaster areas in other states.

Today Wisconsin people in the storm-battered area are receiving help from other sections. Much of it will come from Wisconsin people outside of the storm area. There is a natural desire to aid the people of our own state. Some will have friends and relatives within the storm area and they may find it possible to make direct contributions.

For most people, however, the most effective way to contribute will be to give to the Red Cross which already is in the field and knows what the needs are.

The Practical Side

A considerable outcry developed a few years ago when the Soviet Union ratified the United Nations Covenant on Human Rights, and the U. S. refused to ratify it. Those who then criticized our stand ought to check some of the complaints that continue to come in to a frustrated United Nations Human Rights commission.

The complaints fall principally into two categories — the denial of religious freedom, and political persecution. The latter includes charges of unfair court procedures, arbitrary arrest, detention and forced labor, restrictions on freedom of information, political asylum and property rights. All this is supposed to be confidential information. But John Sibley of the New York Times reports that, of 6,990 complaints received last year, some 5,969 were aimed at the Soviet Union.

The Human Rights commission, acting as if this were the theoretical world for which the United Nations was created,

New Nation on Horizon

A new nation is scheduled to come into being next year which may become an important force in Asian-African and even world politics. It is Nigeria, which will attain independence within the British Commonwealth.

Nigeria has a population of about 35 millions which will place her among the medium-sized nations; it is more, for example, than the population of any Latin American state except Brazil, larger than any of the Middle Eastern Arab nations, larger than many European powers. Furthermore it is a relatively wealthy, progressive country by African standards and thus in time may be expected to take the leadership in the push for an "African personality" in world affairs, something the smaller and weaker independents such as Ghana and Abyssinia have not been able to do. With her close Commonwealth ties (her future foreign service officers already are training in British embassies) she may be expected to resist attempts by Nasser and others to lead Africa into a communist-allied bloc.

The speed with which Africa has been becoming politically mature and a factor in world politics has been amazing. Ten years ago Africa was still considered by most people as the "dark continent;" today she has become something to be reckoned with in world power line-ups. Twenty-five or 50 years from now she may play as important a part in these matters as Asia does today.

"There's a Small Hotel, With a Wishing Well"

Labor Seems Kiss Of Political Death

From Hartford, Conn., Courant

There was a time when politicians vied with each other to get the endorsement of organized labor. But recent results seem to indicate that the backing of labor, as often as not, is the kiss of death. That was illustrated here locally in the last Congressional campaign, when a labor leader with labor's endorsement was defeated. This has happened in seven other states during the most recent primaries.

The worst defeat occurred in Illinois, where a political education director of the United Auto Workers ran third in a field of three. In New Jersey the president of the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers, despite the unanimous backing of labor leaders and organizations, was defeated in the primary for the Democratic Senate nomination. Similar defeats have been registered in Alabama, Indiana, New Mexico, Maryland, and Pennsylvania. In the last named the CIO Political Action Committee joined with Sen. Clark and Mayor Dilworth in backing Harvey Schmidt for the Democratic nomination for the House. He lost by a 2-to-1 margin.

These events are unrelated, perhaps. But they are convincing evidence, in a negative way at least, that labor's endorsement is no magic wand that will win an election. Labor leaders take these defeats seriously. But they do not lay them to any lessening of public support of unions. Rather they say these represent the attempts of labor leaders who formerly worked behind the scenes of the Democratic Party, to step into the center and run the show. Labor leaders are entrenched in the Democratic Party, and their endorsement of Democratic candidates is almost automatic.

But the bald truth is that the rank and file of labor votes not solely as a member of a union, but as a parent, a member of the community, or devotee of a certain set of beliefs and prejudices. This often leads the majority of workers to vote the Democratic ticket. But it is a mistake to assume that this vote is cast because some leader or some committee has issued an official endorsement.

There is reason to believe that this endorsement is now more meaningless than ever, because labor's political effectiveness has been hurt by disclosures of corruption in the Senate investigations. Perhaps the picture will be clearer in the coming November elections. This much is certain now: That when labor leaders submit themselves as candidates for office, they have not been faring well.

Anthem's Aim Above All Is To Be Sung

From the Huron S. D. Plainsman

Lucy Monroe, who has made a career out of singing "The Star Spangled Banner," has asked Congress to make her work easier for her and for her audience. She usually asks the audiences to join in, she says, but many people won't. The reason why, she says, is that they have difficulty with high notes in the middle of the song and again in the end.

"The people want to sing our song well, but rather than not make the high notes, some of them do not sing at all," she says.

Her idea is that some of the high and low notes should be eliminated, making the song easier to sing. However, she feels strongly the basic melody should not be altered.

Considering there are 171 versions of the anthem on file in the Library of Congress and considering that Congress never has adopted an official version, there certainly isn't anything very sacred about the tune.

And considering that the main aim for any national anthem is for it to be sung, everyone — from basses to sopranos — should go along with Miss Monroe so they'll be able to sing along with her as well.

Medicine, Religion Reported in Accord

La Crosse, Wis. — P. — Religion and medicine are in closer accord today than ever before, says Dr. Gunnar Gunderson, president-elect of the American Medical association. He said: "Thoughtful people . . . are recognizing again the old truth that men does not live by bread alone and are finding the newer truth that man cannot live by science alone."

Appleton No Longer the Most Wonderful City

Editor, Post-Crescent:

The school year is almost completed, and plans are set for me to come home. Oh, it will be so good to see my devoted family again, especially my parents, but how disappointed I am that Appleton is not the most wonderful city in the world, as I used to boast to my fellow classmates.

I was sent all the newspaper clippings in regard to the objectionable film, "And God Created Woman," and felt sure that Appleton officials would not allow a film that is so degrading to the dignity of womanhood to be shown. I took pride in myself that the good people had nothing to fear. But to my disappointment, it didn't turn out that way. It's too bad too, because can't you just see if these objectionable films are allowed, the crime rate will be on the rise? As long as the spiritual and mental well-being of our people are in danger, would you mind if we were to light firecrackers on the 4th of July? After all, our physical well-being shouldn't be that important to the officials even if we do burn our fingers once in a while.

Ann Steger

Looking Backward

Tomfoolery Leads to Shooting

79 YEARS AGO
Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for the week of June 21, 1879.

On Sunday evening, while several persons were occupying the offices of Messrs. Fose's livery stable, a young man was shot by fooling.

From what we can gather the facts are briefly these: A young man by the name of C. Reinsor was lying on the lounge when a friend of his, R. Hittell, came along and asked him to move and give

Thomson's Stock Rises Among Republicans

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison — Gov. Thomson's stock has risen perceptibly and importantly during the last six months in the opinion of those whose business it is to assess the state of public opinion and political trends.

Not only Wyngaard has the governor impressed Republican partisans with the vigor of his campaign execution during these early months of the new election year drive, but he has also restored himself to the graces of those who wondered earlier in his term whether he had not been tempted from the paths of party regularity which was his principal stock in trade during his long climb up the political ladder.

A year ago the governor had real troubles. The legislature several times was in near revolt against some of his demands, and notably his publicity campaign to foist upon it a new lobbying act which many members felt was an imputation against their integrity.

He was struggling with the prospect of an unbalanced budget, as he tried to work out a new tax program within the limits of the no-sales-tax commitment he had made in the ardor of his campaign the previous autumn.

Those who saw higher income tax liability implicit in his position were also grumbling because there was very little showing in his fiscal program — as exemplified by the Thomson budget bill — that he had made any very strenuous effort to cut expenditures to fit with the reduced income prospects of the treasury.

THE CHANGE

It didn't seem to be in the cards, but Thomson like several of his predecessors had luck riding with him as state tax receipts were larger than the forecasts and the legislature was able to balance the largest budget in history with only a minor adjustment of state taxes.

That was the turning of the tide of his fortunes during his first term. Since that time partisans have found it difficult to put their fingers on any change, but there is a general feeling in the party that the governor has returned to his old habits of thinking and his old style of campaigning.

As frequently happens, those of his legislative critics who were boiling in anger when he forced them, in effect, to adopt the stern new lobbying act are now confessing, albeit reluctantly, that it might have been a good idea after all. It removed from the 1958 campaign, to all intents and purposes, an issue that had been good for uncomfortably rich publicity dividends in the hands of the Democrats in several previous campaigns.

There remain some hazards in Thomson's position, including the old issue of tax policy, and the new one proposed by the Republican state convention in the form of a "right to work" referendum idea.

They will require some adroitness on the part of Thomson, who in some minds will stand committed on both issues. He campaigned against the sales tax only two years ago, and it will be difficult for him to about face. Yet the Republican platform declaration on the issue is probably broad enough to accommodate both his opposition and the demands of the sales taxers. Doubtless it was planned that way.

He may be in more difficult position with respect to the demand for a popular vote on the issue of compulsory unionism. He has come pretty close to committing himself on that question in several informal statements including one in a speech to a union convention a little more than a year ago. Here again, however, there may be an opening in that Republicans in general are divided on the question. The GOP convention split. It is conceivable that the governor can volunteer his personal reservations about legislation in the field, without risking the antagonism of those who want a popular expression on its merits at the ballot box.

What is wrong with asking the people of Wisconsin for a test vote on a political question that has so many of their political leaders fiercely divided, he may ask?

Develop Plastic Shell Case for Artillery

Washington — A 105-millimeter plastic shell case weighing less than half as much as metal cases has been developed for the army.

Tube Turns Plastics, Inc., of Louisville, Ky., has been awarded a development contract to produce several hundred of the plastic cases for full-scale firing tests at the Aberdeen, Md., proving ground.

In research, the plastic case has withstood gas pressures as high as 35,000 pounds per square inch and a flame temperature of 4,000 degrees Fahrenheit at the instant of percussion. Weighing only 24 pounds, the new cases are expected to ease the burden of transporting shells and handling them at gun sites.

Cap., of St. Joseph church, spiritual director, and Ray Scheffhuth, secretary, drew up a tentative schedule of speakers for the forum here that winter.

Leonard Schoenrock, Menasha, was elected commander of pup tent No. 16 of the Military Order of Cookies. The order was the honor group of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Aldermen Carl Rehfeldt of the Fourth ward and Fred Rehfeldt of the Sixth ward arranged a meeting at city hall for property owners to discuss the type of improvement desired for Parkway boulevard.

Outagamie County Compares Well With Others on Rural School Costs

Survey Shows Operating Expense Per Pupil For Various Types of Districts in Area

It costs less per child to operate rural and state graded schools in Outagamie county than in Winnebago, Waupaca and Calumet counties, according to a report of the public expenditure survey of Wisconsin.

Of the four counties, only Calumet pays more per child on the basis of average daily attendance than the average for the whole state. The costs were for the 1956-57 school year ending last June.

Law Students Should Have More Courses With Facts, Not Cases

BY GEORGE SOKOLSKY
(Copyright, 1958)

Physicians and surgeons learn their business not only at college but also in clinics and as assistants to older men. It used to be that most journalists started as printers' devils or office boys and copy boys and then worked their way up through various grades and experience until, in their middle years, when they knew something and could restrain their fingers, they got a responsible position. Lawyers used to read law in the offices of their elders and learned the law business by practice and experience as well as by reading the books. That is before the case system was discovered.

Along comes Judge Robert S. Marx, Professor of law in the University of Cincinnati, and asks some questions about this training. He says:

"The practical aspect of the problem confronting the law student is that it will be several years after graduation before he will be called upon to argue cases in an appellate court. His first experience will be in the trial court. Here the law is usually reasonably clear and well settled. On the other hand, the facts in the trial court are not agreed or assumed but are always in controversy. Hence, the success or failure of the young lawyer depends upon the care and diligence with which he has gathered and assembled the facts and the many precise facts to know."

evidence and his skill in presenting these at the trial. Unfortunately, the majority of our law schools have done little to give a realistic education to the young lawyer in this all important field of getting the facts, marshalling the evidence, and trying the case to a court or jury. Most law students graduate without having had any practical legal experience in the laboratories of the law similar to the experience which medical students receive in medical laboratories and hospitals."

Hard Ordeals
This is very true. Fact-gathering and fact-finding are difficult ordeals. Facts are elusive. For instance, I know of a person whose statement of facts I applied in actual 'live' cases. . . . Whereas there is always a basis for what he says, nothing is precisely so. Most often he reports plausible rumors. Sometimes he becomes conscious of his lack of precise data and feeling obliged always to say something when called upon, he employs ingenuity. But ingenuity does not establish a fact. The middle of the 19th century was characterized by a compulsive search for facts. As a result there was a vast accumulation of detailed knowledge in every field, which scientists, particularly the Germans, classified and catalogued and indexed. The philosophers revolted against mere discovery and cataloguing and devoted themselves to systematizing knowledge into thought. This battle between the labelers and the thinkers has continued to this day in learned circles. But by now, there are so many precise facts to know that college entrance examinations are given in the form of questions that can be answered by underlining words and filling in blocks, and the papers can be marked by an IBM machine. Thinking therefore is unnecessary.

Courts Near
Judge Samuel Leibowitz of Brooklyn said on this subject: "There are six famous law schools in New York City, all of them a short distance from the largest court system in the world, federal, state and municipal. Do any of the professors take their students to these courtrooms — laboratories where the abstract principles of law they teach . . . are applied in actual 'live' cases. . . . Judge Marx defines his terms accurately and precisely: . . . By a course on facts I do not mean a course on evidence. Evidence deals with what is admissible or competent or relevant. A course on facts deals with the truth regardless of the rules of evidence, and the truth does not vary, whether the case is civil or criminal or is based on law or equity. . . . It is amazing how many successful men fear facts. For instance, Cyrus Eaton is pacifistic. He fails to grasp the meaning of Soviet imperialism. All that he knows is that war is evil. He underwrites peace but not freedom. On the other hand, if he were capable of understanding the sinister nature of the Soviet universal state, he would devote himself to the policies of Secretary of State Dulles rather than to those of Nikita Khrushchev."

The Rev. James R. Ohlrogge, kneeling, was ordained into the ministry of the American Lutheran church Sunday by his father, the Rev. F. R. Ohlrogge, pastor of the St. John's Lutheran church, Marion, center. Assisting in the ordination were the Rev. Theodore Ohlrogge, left, uncle of the new minister and president of the Wisconsin district of the American Lutheran church, and the Rev. Alfred Ewald, president of Wartburg Theological seminary, Dubuque, Iowa. The ceremony took place at the Marion church.

The Rev. James R. Ohlrogge Becomes Third Generation to Enter Ministry

Marion — the third generation of the Ohlrogge family, James R. Ohlrogge was ordained into the ministry Sunday morning in a service at St. John's Lutheran church by his father, the Rev. F. R. Ohlrogge, pastor of the church.

Dr. Alfred Ewald, president of the Wartburg Theological seminary of Dubuque, Iowa, delivered the sermon. Dr. Theodore Ohlrogge, Appleton, president of the Wisconsin district of the American Lutheran church, an uncle of the Rev. James Ohlrogge, was the liturgist.

Special music included a vocal quartet comprised of Mrs. James Ohlrogge and her three sisters, Hilma, Marian and Betty Jacobson of Hixton, who sang, "O Master Let Me Walk With Thee." The church choir sang, "I Will Go Where You Want Me To Go."

A dinner was served in the church dining room following the ordination service.

The Rev. James Ohlrogge was born on May 7, 1932, at Green Bay, and was baptized on May 29 at Morgan, Wis., by his grandfather, the late Rev. F. H. Ohlrogge of Seymour. He was confirmed at St. John's Lutheran church, Marion, on April 14, 1946, by his father.

He attended the Marion grade school and graduated from Marion High school in 1950. In 1954 he graduated from Wartburg college in Waverly, Iowa, with a Bachelor of Arts degree. His theological training was at Wartburg Theological seminary, Dubuque, where he received his Bachelor of Divinity degree in May of this year. He served a year of theological

U. S. Families Ready To Leave Lebanon

5,000 other Americans in Beirut were urged to stay off the streets.

So far no foreigners have been hurt in the month-old rebellion against President Camille Chamoun's pro-western government, which charges the insurgents have been directed by President Nasser's United Arab Republic and inspired by its Pan-Arab expansionist policies.

The Lebanese casualties have been reckoned with upward of 500. Fighting Saturday killed 50 persons, and the large number of ambulances in Beirut yesterday was evidence of the continuing bitter battle.

Premier Sami Solh's downtown house was sacked and set afire by rebels, but he had moved out and was living with his daughter in another part of the city. The home of Naim Mohghabghab, another strong Chamoun supporter, also was sacked.

Security forces shelled the roof and top floor of rebel leader Saeb Salam's home. Salam was unhurt, but one of his lieutenants, Adnan Nahas, was killed. The attack tore nine holes in the roof and shattered the top-floor windows.

Rebel snipers shot at the presidential palace again but were repelled. The palace, where Chamoun lives, remained undamaged after two days of fighting.

Hamarskjold is due here tomorrow night to attend the first formal meeting of the U.N. observation team sometime this week. The observer force is expected to total 27 by the end of the week—17 who have already arrived from the U.N. truce organization in Palestine and 10 from Norway.

Try to Stop Arms A June 11 security council resolution charges the team with stopping any arms or men from getting through to the rebels, but it probably will be able to do little to help solve the internal nub of the problem—a deep political split between Chamoun and his opposition. The revolt followed reports that the president planned to have parliament amend the constitution so he could seek a second term. Later he said he would not attempt a constitutional change, and the rebels then demanded he resign at once.

Lebanon's U.N. delegate, Karim Azkoul, said in New York that U.N. intervention has made the rebels realize that this is the last chance for decisive action.

In a television interview he said Hamarskjold's presence in Lebanon will help dramatize the serious view the world organization takes of the situation. Azkoul said that if Hamarskjold does not succeed in halting the rebellion, Lebanon will go back to the security council. The Chamoun government has not contemplated asking for American aid under the Eisenhower doctrine, he added.

necting Terre Haute with its sister city, and decided not to close the structure.

Residents piled themselves and their furniture on trucks standing by, and many of them were taken to a Red Cross emergency center in the Central grade school. Many had to be forced to leave.

National guardsmen and army reservists aided police in patrolling the city against looters.

Authorities estimated 40 percent of the West Terre Haute community would be flooded before the Wabash reached its predicted crest of about 28 feet at noon. The river level was 27.7 feet at 8 a.m. and was rising slowly.

Extra state troopers, national guardsmen and 40 prisoners from the nearby state penal farm were rushed into the area last night after Gov. Harold W. Handley agreed to a request from local officials to declare a state of emergency. The prisoners, under guard, went to work sandbagging the weakening levee.

Terre Haute proper, with a population of 65,000, is on the east side of the river and is mostly on higher ground and not believed to be in danger.

Candidate's Acceptance Of Coat Becomes Late Maine Election Issue

Portland, Maine — Maine voters choose party nominees today after a dull primary campaign in which the friendship of Bernard Goldfine and Sen. Frederick G. Payne (R) became an eleventh hour issue.

The 57-year-old Payne, who wants a second term, disclosed in Washington Friday he once accepted a vicuna coat from Goldfine but said the Boston textile millionaire never asked him for favors.

Payne's opponent, Herman D. Sahagian, 61, told home town supporters in Belgrade Sunday that Payne was acting like "a man who is trying to cover something." He added: "When I need a coat I buy my own."

The winner meets Democratic Gov. Edmund S. Muskie, 44, who is unopposed to today. The election is in September. Beginning in 1960 Maine will ballot in November with other states.

Also at stake today are nominations for three house seats, the first 4-year term for governor, a legislature and county offices.

The recess in tanker-NMU talks brought conflicting statements from negotiators.

City Relief
Costs $11,000
Higher in '58

Relief cases through June 1 are costing the city $11,000 more this year than last year, Relief Director F. A. W. Hammond reported today.

Hammond said he spent $31,540.10 of the year's $49,514 budget in the first five months, compared to $20,186.52 of $49,726 a year ago.

He has $17,973.90 left for the last seven months, he said, compared to $29,537.48 a year ago.

The director reported he probably will have to go before the city council's finance committee for more money sometime in September, since spending is at the rate of about $5,000 a month.

There is only $14,383 remaining in the contingent fund.

Hammond said the money so far this year has gone to an average of 182.2 people a month, compared to 107.8 people a month in the first five months last year. The average monthly caseload is 68.4 cases, compared to 46.8 cases a year ago.

The picture has remained relatively unchanged since February, he said, when there were 176 people in 69 cases. In May there were 172 people in 66 cases. The February statistics compare with 131 people and 53 cases in February, 1957. The May statistics compare with 92 people and 43 cases in May, 1957.

For Association's
'59 State Tourney

Waupaca — Waupaca was chosen as the 1959 site of the Wisconsin State Skeet Shooting association's annual tournament during a board of directors meeting Saturday evening.

It was felt the weekend's shoot was one of the most successful ever and that Waupaca's central location and facilities made it an ideal spot.

Major action during the annual meeting prior to the board session was to drop added money from prize lists. It will be continued in the optional.

Favored Drop
Waupaca's Bill Johnson told the group money gets to be blood and that skeet was a sport dedicated to shooting under realistic target conditions.

All shooters present were in favor of dropping money from the lists.

New officers are John Matchette, Milwaukee, president; Ed Shearer, Waukesha, first vice president, and Norbert Vette of Oshkosh, secretary-treasurer.

Three Appleton men were rescued by a Fond du Lac crew about 11 o'clock Sunday night when their boat ran out of fuel on Lake Winnebago.

Lawrence Frei, 57 Cherry court, Walter Kupfer, 22 Cherry court, and O. J. Ashman, 28 Cherry court, were passengers in the "Jennie Marie," a 27-foot cruiser owned by Frei, which ran out of fuel about 4 o'clock in the afternoon and drifted from the west to the east shore of the lake.

The men were rescued by the "S. E. S. Mercury," commanded by Norman Olsen, Fond du Lac, who was notified of the trouble at 9:50.

The Frei boat was near Quincey when the "Mercury" reached it and towed it to Columbia park on the east shore of the lake.

Three little future accountants seem to be amazed at the figures their father is showing them in the family budget. Their father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Baer, through long experience, appear able to take the budget more in stride. Mr. Baer is an accountant in the General Office of Standard Oil Company where Standard's annual budget is prepared.

Where does the money go?

REVIEWING FAMILY BUDGETS, pleasant or not, is a task every family has to face at some time. And every business, too. In a way, company finances are a lot like personal financial problems.

You are welcome to a copy of our 32-page 1957 Annual Report.
Just write to Standard Oil Company, 910 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago 80, Ill.

- 1. Things we bought and used... 59.5%
Most of the money we took in went for things we had to buy, such as crude oil, materials and services, plus charges made for wear and tear. These costs are roughly comparable to your living expenses. We buy everything from paper clips to structural steel from more than 32,000 independent companies in hundreds of American communities. While our costs have skyrocketed in the past few years, prices of oil products have gone up only slightly in the same period!
- 2. Taxes paid... 18.7%
Our next biggest item—even bigger than our payroll!—was for taxes, including our own taxes, and those we collect from our customers for national, state and local governments. All together this totaled $447,048,487. And that figure does not include the many "hidden" taxes everyone pays!
- 3. Wages, salaries, benefits... 15.5%
Then there were wages, salaries and benefits for our 49,680 employees. Standard Oil employees enjoy one of the most progressive benefit programs in any industry. Back in 1903, when retirement plans were virtually unheard of in industry, Standard Oil started its retirement plan. It was among the first industrial companies in America to do this.
- 4. Profits used for improvement... 4.0%
After all costs of doing business were taken care of, 6.3% was left. This is profit. We used part of this, or 4.0% of our total income, to expand facilities and to improve our products and services for the millions of people who depend on us for petroleum products.

Companies, too, must watch the pennies. Like you, Standard Oil and its subsidiary companies took in a certain amount of money last year. And here's what happened to it.

- 5. Profits paid to owners... 2.3%
The balance, or 2.3%, went as dividends to our 148,400 shareholder-owners. Standard Oil has paid dividends for 64 consecutive years. The value of dividends paid in 1957, including a special fourth quarter dividend, was $2.11 per share. We try to pay share owners a dividend equal in value to approximately half of earnings each year, reinvesting the remainder for future growth in the interest of shareholders, employees and the public.

- 6. And that's where our money went!
All the money we took in has been accounted for. At our service stations, our plans and investments face the final test, for our millions of customers are the bosses. Through our subsidiaries, we serve all America. Our products are sold in 48 states.

What makes a company a good citizen? To be a good citizen a business must be frank and open—with employees, stockholders, customers, the public. In advertisements like this during the year, we at Standard Oil publish reports to our neighbors so you will know how we work, something about our Standard Oil family, where our money goes, and the part we play in the prosperity of the communities in which we live and work.

Machine-Type Minds Lead Old Bob Into Stark Home Drama

The cloaked people who sneak me classified intelligence from time to time inform me that we are verging on machines on machines which will respond to the human voice. As a man who has difficulty getting dogs to come to chow, this recent conference of the international communications scientists has got me clutching the ropes and screaming for the flung towel.

This is eerie, friends. This is Weirsville. Typewriters that come when you call and put down words you never really meant to say, except for the martinis. You just tell a machine to get you two down front in the center section; the machine recognizes its master's voice and you get the tickets for the latest hit play and a typescript in your own handwriting.

I can't deal with this in narrative. It demands drama. Scene I Scene opens in the overhauled split-level house of Rafe Rackstraw, underpaid genius. Rafe totters in from a dreary day in the marts. Marijuana's down and there is a fight for control for the poppy market, and switchblades are mad, man, mad.

Rafe slumps into a chair, having tossed his undented, narrow-brimmed hat into the circular file in which he keeps unpaid dunning letters. Rafe: "Hi, sweetie. How was it at the PTA?" He looks tenderly at the machine.

Univac: "I didn't go. I sent a woman. Some stranger. Said she was your mother. Anyhow, your voices sounded similar. I needed a grease job. What that Florida sun will do to a machine's crown-block!"

Rafe: "Univac, honeychile, sweetie lamb, I had a rotten day at the office. The hero market went down, down, down. I just don't know what our juvenile delinquents are gonna do for a large charge. Be a real sweet computer and whip into the kitchen and make old dad a dry martini. That's a good girl—I mean, parm-me, a living mechanical doll. Heavens to Thomas Edison, not to say Watson, it's nice to get old corners..."

Old, Old Tale
Univac: Don't hand me that jazz, dad. Just because you practice all day long on the other machines when you say you're really out with girls. What do you think I've been doing all day? You think I got a picnic around here with three comptometers to take care of? You buta your mind? The oil bill alone, and changing all those transistors. Go mix your own martini, lush, and while you're bent over, fetch me another slug of three-in-one."

Rafe: "Look, sweets. When we stood up in front of IBM and you promised to love, honor and obey, who was best man? I ask you. Was it Mr. Watson or wasn't it? You call this obeying? Also, it was you who wanted all three of the little comptometers. It wasn't me, if you hadn't waved those rheostats at me, kid, I would have settled for children. All you got, doll, is a sharp ear and a tongue to match."

Univac: "Okay, okay. So I wanted to have the comptometers. There was a moon, and I kind of liked the sound of your voice. Consider the whole thing, canceled. We'll erase the record. Boy, I got devices you never even dreamed of. Science marches on, Mac, when you're away hustling trade."

Could Have Been...
"But one thing I got to teletype: Once I was gay and romantic. I could of worked on any Nike installation on Long Island or in Connecticut. But you, you had to come along with this rose-colored control-panel proposition, and the first thing I know I'm hip deep in little comptometers and doing my own lubrication. A fine husband you are."

"Sure, I know your voice. But so did the dog in the Victor advertisement 30 years ago, when machines had horns."

Rafe: "All right, all right. So I'll get the drinks. What are you sozzling yourself in these days, Sinclair or Standard?"

Univac, smirking: "New thing, daddy-o. Shell has got a fresh blend that simply won't quit. You take a soupcon of..."

Rafe, heading for the kitchen and contemplating matrimony: "Next time, no matter what the other machines say on Third avenue, I'm going to marry a woman."

Whale of a Tale Told by Captain

Provincetown, Mass. — Capt. Joseph Corea of the dragger "Papa Joe" tells of a struggle with a 60-ton whale that nearly pulled him and his crew to their deaths.

Corea said they encountered a pod of some 14 whales. One of them nosed into their net, apparently looking for fish on which to feed.

During the whale's struggle to free itself, the captain said, the dragger's stern was pulled down to the gunwhales. About then the crew was first able to play out the net.

After a feverish 30-minute struggle, the fishermen managed to dispatch the whale and cut the line, allowing the carcass to sink, Capt. Corea related.

Adams Case Shows Official Can't Aid Friend

Issue Identical to Gen. Vaughn Episode Under Truman Regime

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington — What's "proper" and "improper" in the Washington world — and what's "ethical" and "unethical"?

Judging by the headline publicity given to the Sherman Adams case in the last few days and to the Gen. Vaughn episode during the Truman administration, it is "improper" for any official to do for a friend what he would do for a stranger.

Gen. Vaughn, who was military aide to President Truman, was unjustly maligned for accepting a "deep freeze" and other gifts from old friends who happened to have business relationships with the government. This correspondent wrote on Aug. 17, 1949, in defense of Gen. Vaughn as follows:

"Gen. Vaughn presumably has the right to speak for the White House. If the words 'military aide' had been dropped from his title and he had acted simply as one of the many civilian assistants at the White House, it is doubtful whether much fuss would have been stirred up about his activities. As one of the president's assistants he has had the right to telephone to or confer with anybody about anything happening in the government.

"The impropriety, if any, on Gen. Vaughn's part was in going beyond the functions of a military aide, though again and again in the past military aides have acted virtually as super-secretaries.

Cannot Be Improper
"The acceptance of gifts in itself cannot be held to be improper unless in some way the gift can be proved to have been related to some governmental action taken. If, indeed, it can be proved that it was a bribe, then the laws already on the statute books can take care of such cases."

No such proof was ever offered in the case of Gen. Vaughn.

Sherman Adams, chief aide to President Eisenhower in the work of the executive offices, is a man of integrity. The president is convinced he is. The mere fact that Adams may have accepted gifts and hospitality from a long-time friend is not evidence either of corruption or of the exercise of an improper influence by Adams upon any of the independent governmental bodies mentioned in the case. To insinuate or infer that there was corruption is to libel Adams. Congressional committees are, however, immune from libel prosecutions. Thus reputations can be irreparably damaged by statements made by members of congressional committees or their staffs in giving "smear" news to the press.

In this instance the information as to what Adams really did was not handled by the house committee in such a way that his answer could be given to the public the same day the charges were made. The accusations were widely spread before the rebuttal could be presented. The implications of wrongdoing were not supported by any proof of undue influence.

The House of Representatives, by resolution, in March, 1955 modified its own rules and provided that evidence which might "tend to defame or to degrade" an individual must be submitted in private session and an opportunity afforded the person involved to submit a rebuttal. This rule was violated by the house committee in the Adams case even after attention was called to the rule. For there was no "evidence" of any wrongdoing.

Political Reason
The reason for all this of course, is politics. The Republicans in the 1952 campaign referred often to the charges of corruption which they said had happened under the Truman regime. Now the Democrats are striking back. It happens, however, that some of the individuals involved in those charges under the Truman administration were tried by the courts and ordered to serve jail sentences. This is not at all parallel to what was revealed last week under the Republican administration.

Plainly, if Sherman Adams had thought at the time that there was anything wrong in accepting presents or hospitality from an old friend, he would have avoided any such embarrassment. Likewise, if he had believed it was improper to phone a governmental agency to make a routine inquiry about a friend's case, Adams would never have done it. Theoretically, he should have rejected any hospitality or gifts at Christmas from every friend and should have said: "I am sorry, but, if I take the gifts and someday you need an introduction to any government official — to which you would be justly entitled — I will not be able to do for you what I could do for a perfect stranger."

Many members of congress frequently accept gifts and hospitality from their constituents who have legislation pending in the senate or the house. Is this "proper" or "improper"? It certainly is not on its face evidence of corruption but only a striking example of how "guilt by innuendo" can impair the right of every individual to be considered honest until proved dishonest.

Nagels Win 8th Straight Game In City League

Shamrock Edge VFW Behind 3-Hitter By Cliff Hannagan

Kaukauna — The Nagels maintained its undefeated mark in the City Softball league Friday night, chalking up a 13 to 9 win over the Arnolds. The winners now have eight wins without a loss while the losers have a record of one win and six losses.

The second game of the evening had Shamrock bar down VFW 8 to 5. The Irish now have seven wins and one loss while VFW has won five and lost three.

The league leaders took advantage of two big innings to score most of their runs and defeat the Arnolds. The winners scored five runs in the first inning on four walks and three singles, added a single tally in the second on two singles, a stolen base and a fielder's choice, picked up another tally in the third on a single and three walks and added one in the fourth on two singles.

The Nagels added its final five runs in the sixth inning on five walks, a single and doubles by Emil Giordana and Dale Mitchler. A walk and a triple by Ken Roloff gave the losers one run in the first inning, a walk, two errors, two singles and a double by Ron Briggs accounted for four runs in the third.

The losers picked up single runs in the fifth and sixth and then concluded the scoring with two runs in the top of the seventh. Extra base blows in the final two innings for the losers included a triple by Bud Blakeslee and a double by Don Lemke.

3-Hit Victory
The Irish moved to the 8 to 5 win over VFW behind the 3-hit pitching of Cliff Hannagan.

The winners scored two runs in the first inning, two in the second, three in the fourth and one in the fifth. The only extra base hits for the winners were consecutive doubles by Roy Vandenberg and Tony Schuh in the fifth inning as they made only six hits off the hurling of Ken Uhlenbroek.

The losers scored two runs in the fourth on three walks, and

Next Year Could be Last for Jack Webb's 'Dragnet' Series

BY JACK WEBB

New York —(AP)—Seville had many barbers, but only one of them became the theme for the opera.

This is a truism which somebody uttered on Broadway a generation ago. But it's as sharp as a honed razor today and it will still fit many a situation. Including a very pressing one with me: "Dragnet."

We have had many stories, themes and ideas pass across the story desk at Mark VII in the past decade. But there has been only one "Dragnet." There has been only one of every standard in the history of entertainment. The echoes come later.

Now people are asking if this is the moment of truth for "Dragnet." It has another—its seventh—year to play on NBC-TV. But we have filmed the last segment of our current contract. Is this the brittle, bitter end?

Let me confess there is much I have come to know about "Dragnet." But where does it go from here, I do not know.

Not Alone

Show business can be a lonely arena for the gladiators who come to conquer. But you keep up the pace, because pace is what keeps you in there, when your legs are dragging and your arms hang limp.

We are not alone in this one facet: There have been other children of this wonderful brain in this age of miracles, television, which have been made as welcome as "Dragnet" in the living rooms around the world. The thrill and gratitude of being part of this will never pale for me. But when I look at Joe Friday, and as he must look to me, there is a note of fatigue in the air.

I don't know how Joe feels, but I'm beginning to feel the wear a little. The way we set up "Dragnet," it requires my being in touch with the production every minute. Perhaps this can be changed.

Perhaps this is the time to change it.

Getting Old

Television is a ravenous medium. All it requires is material, creative material. It is a business which never stands still and in which no one is allowed to stand still, at the risk of his professional skin. Chancing this, we have continued to pour our energies and time into "Dragnet." Now, other things call. Right now, we have completed a pilot film on our proposed new series, "Pete Kelly's Blues," which did well in radio and motion pictures. Still other projects are ahead for Mark VII.

Of course, this doesn't necessarily foredoom "Dragnet." It is not mandatory that Joe Friday star in the series. Is any police department a 1-man proposition?

The future of "Dragnet" seems to be painted from some polychromatic pool of mystery. Because it's as much a mystery to me as to anyone. And

Need Right Face

Dinah Shore Expounds On Singers' Problems

BY JINGO

Dinah Shore was expounding, the other day, on some of the problems facing television singers.

"There is no medium like television to tell the world you're bored, however inadvertently you may slip this advice to the public. This is why we fondle a good song, one with which we can wall or have fun, prance, dance, or just stand still to let the mood envelop us."

And, you have to have the right face, Dinah says.

"The new generation would never accept the most glorious voice of the opera company's heaviest soprano singing 'Juliet.' They would turn the dial away from a baby-face singing bawdy blues. What ever she does with her voice, the TV singer must be sure to place the proper face behind it."

Another of the problems, she says, is turning up tunes to tell a tale.

"A singer must interpret lyrics and the lyrics must tell a story, an epic or a vignette to hold an audience. At year's end, in reviewing songs of the preceding 12 months, it wasn't easy to find enough representation of which to be proud."

A Steaming Cup of Coffee was offered to Philip Retson, left, by George Karras, operating the coffee pot, at a "men-only" breakfast party observing Father's Day on Sunday morning at the Retson home, 1115 E. Melrose avenue. A group of 27 gathered in the Retson backyard to breakfast on orange juice, doughnuts and coffee—and to swap male talk in the absence of women and children.

'Men-Only' Breakfast

Dads all over America basked in well-deserved glory Sunday as admiring family members assembled from near and far to salute Pop on his special day. Contrary to this gathering talk while lounging on comfortable backyard furniture. An initial attempt, Sunday's party is slated to become an annual event by the group, formed of neighborhood men. The off-limits party—closed to women and children—was conceived by the men, in a whimsical "get-even-move," after they observed their wives' regular "coffees."

BY EMILY POST

Dear Mrs. Post: A friend's daughter was married recently and although many of us were not invited to the reception we did receive invitations to the church ceremony which we attended even though it was quite a distance for most of us to travel. However, we could not help but feel slighted and hurt because immediately after the ceremony the bride and groom and their parents left, not giving any of us the opportunity to wish them well. We could understand their leaving if everyone was going to the reception, but, since they weren't, wasn't this very inconsiderate to those who made a special effort to go to the church?

Answer: If most of the guests were invited to the church only and the reception limited to immediate families and nearest relatives, it would have been friendly, as well as proper, for the bride and groom to wait at the back of the church to receive the good wishes of the guests as they filed out.

Place Mats
Dear Mrs. Post: Does everything have to be put on the place mats? I have some very lovely place mats that will not accommodate much more than the large dinner plate and silver.

Answer: Not at all necessary. In fact, glasses, bread-and-butter plates almost always are put beyond the place mats.

"The Summer Address for Smart Furs"

Singer Eddie Fisher, Recovering from an appendectomy, was out of the hospital in time to spend Father's Day with four month old Eddie, left, and 19-month old Carrie. Looking on is happily their equally famous mother, singer Debbie Reynolds. Fisher, who spent the weekend at home, will travel to Las Vegas for a night club appearance starting Wednesday.

Hints to the Bride-Elect

Posies in a summer garden puff sleeve or pleated shirring aids, as they do not wilt in humid summer weather.

Designers have flattered pretty shoulders with lightly scooped or sabrina necklines or have added soft fabric swaths for coverup on the strapless gowns. Slender young figures too, are outlined by dresses, which have petal-full skirts and bodices as delicately molded as a flower.

The sun-kissed blooms have also tinted summer's gowns: soft rose-pink, glowing uttercup yellow, deep cornflower blue and palest lavender hibiscus are among the pastels displayed.

Mistily Sheer Gowns

Browsers in the veritable flower gardens of bridal shops will find selection difficult as one gown is fairer than the other. Diaphaneous gowns abound, mistily sheer, and ethereally young in manner. Drifts of skirts distinguish the bouffant frocks in both bell skirted and the longer torsoed princess style. Bodices are brief, many are sleeveless, while others have the tiniest

Those who prefer a more sophisticated gown will also be pleased by the new fashions. The elegant sheath is shown, particularly attractive in the "harem" model with its skirt edge tucked from underneath for controlled fullness.

Chic Leggy Look

Chic design has lent these slimmer models wide cummerbunds, flowing back panels and puffs. Skirts are leggier with new shorter hemlines and bodice tops dip to low back décolleté or are styled with tiny straps.

Bridal consultants report that many young women are choosing to gown their entire party in one shade, particularly if the aids are few in number. However, those with more attendants, still enjoy a rainbow setting for bridal white choosing several pastel colors in similarly styled gowns.

Caps for the bridal attendants range widely, from the tiny pillbox, floral wreath or band to the large face-framing picture hat with rippling brim and flowing ribbon band. Shoes to complete the costume can be selected from either the lacy strap model or the slim tapered toe pump. Most are offered in leather, linen, brocade and silk and can be dyed to match the attendants' gowns.

Lawrence Graduates Repeat Nuptial Vows

Thomas Edwin Melchert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin F. Melchert, Kaukauna, claimed Miss Glynn Janis Rounds, West Allis, as his bride in a 10 o'clock double ring ceremony this morning at First Methodist church, West Allis. Officiating clergymen were the Revs. Earl Allen and George W. Lester. Miss Rounds, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Ross Endl, West Allis, chose Mrs. William Green, Milwaukee, as her matron of honor. She was given in marriage by Mr. Endl. A cousin of the bridegroom, Richard Saari, Hurley, attended as best man. Clark Stuart Rounds, brother of the bride, served as main usher.

Culbertson on Bridge

By Ely Culbertson

It goes without saying that there must be partnership understanding on all phases of bidding, but some recurring situations require an even closer rapport than others. In the following case two internationally famous experts didn't see eye-to-eye at all, and as a consequence they earned (repeat earned) a fat goose-egg on the board in a pair tournament. South, dealer.

North-South vulnerable.

S-8 7 6 5 2
H-Q 8 3
D-9 5 2
C-K 10

WEST

D-K J 10 6
C-J 9 3

SOUTH
H-A 10
D-A Q 7
C-Q 8 6 5 4

In all fairness, East-West were "fixed" in some degree by sheer circumstance, because at most of the tables the auction was opened with one no trump by South, which automatically kept East-West out of trouble, whereas at this table South elected to open with one club. The bidding then went:

South	West	North	East
1 C	Pass	Pass	D'ble
1 N T	D'ble	Pass	Pass

North's meek pass to the club bid aided and abetted the fixing, with each defender attributing a little more strength to the other than was actually held.

Even while conceding all this, however, it is very evident that the respective doubles by East and West were a little too ambitious. West's penalty double of one no trump was particularly optimistic, but East, as the initiator of the sequence, was far from guiltless.

It is true that in the reopening position — East's position when the club bid was passed around — there can be and even must be a reduction in the requirements for a takeout double, but the partnership cannot operate intelligently when said requirements are slashed to the bone. Consider this case. Suppose that East, instead of doubling on a miserable 10 high-card points, had had even one queen more — the heart queen. Then, instead of getting a zero for his side by doubling the no trump (with South making an extra trick), West would have scored a top by beating the one-no-trump contract a trick, 200 points. This is not to say that West made a sound double — far from it — but it is to say that East would have been wiser to reopen with a less provocative call, namely one diamond.

The Rev. Paul Kuske, Waupaca, officiated at the double ring ceremony. Frank Zabel, Pigeon, Mich., served as organist and Hubert Rauch, Findlay, Ohio, was soloist.

Miss Gladys Klueger, Sheboygan, was maid of honor, and Miss Carolyn Spaeth, Jenera, Ohio, and Mrs. Fred Schroeder, Weyauwega, sister of the bride, were bridesmaids. Groomsmen were Stephen Boehm, Jenera, brother of the bridegroom, and Fred Schroeder, brother-in-law of the bride. Immediately after the ceremony there was a reception in the Lutheran school basement. After a wedding trip to northern Wisconsin, the couple will be at home in Bluffton, Ohio. The bride is a graduate of Winnebago Lutheran Academy, Fond du Lac, and Dr. Martin Luther college, New Urm, Minn. She has been teaching first through fourth grade at Trinity Lutheran school, Jenera. A Lovelier You

By Mary Sue Miller

Rouge, A Beauty Maker

In some quarters, rouge has gotten a bad name. This undoubtedly is due to its frequent misuse. Now one does see it daubed on in feverish patches and aging circles—effects that are altogether unnatural and therefore unattractive.

Properly applied, rouge performs wonders of loveliness. It erases sallowness in the young and adds a blush of youth to women past the blushing stage. It also goes far toward improving the modulation of a face.

For beautiful results, use a shade that picks up but is paler than your lipstick. Apply it close to the nose, if you wish to minimize round contours, broad cheekbones or a crepey chin-line. But if you desire to soften angles, place rouge well out on the cheeks.

Always blend it outward until edges become invisible. Then, the roses in your cheeks will seem to spring from within and not from the rouge pot.

Your Problems

Delicate Dilemma Disturbs Don Juan Who Doubts Damsel

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN: I have a problem that involves a very delicate subject. I'm no good at writing so please read this letter. I'm no kid, in fact I'm 31. I've become seriously interested in a girl who is 28. This girl was married briefly and lost her husband two years ago. She has a very good figure, but I have a hunch it's not all her. I've hinted at this a couple times and she politely told me to mind my own business. If I marry her, this is my business, isn't it?

Do you think this comes under the heading of deceiving a guy? I am hoping you'll lay it on the line—as usual. Your answer will mean a lot to me.—VERDAD

Gettin' pretty nosy, aren't you, Buster? My advice is to accept the merchandise at face value and don't be so darned technical.

A girl who has not been richly endowed has a perfect right to put up a front if she chooses. If this girl has the qualities you're looking for in a wife what difference does it make if her dimensions are an optical illusion?

(P.S. What blue noses?)

DEAR ANN: I'm so shocked and upset I'm unable to figure out a sensible solution. Please help me.

I'm a single woman who entertains my married girl, friends and their husbands from time to time. They've always been considerate and I feel I should reciprocate in some way.

Last night I had a dinner party for three couples. The husbands band of my dearest friend told me he had started a stamp collection and asked to see my album, which everyone knows is valuable and exceptional. We sat on the davenport together, leafing through the album. He turned the pages with one hand and kept the other hand inside the book.

This morning I opened the album to add some stamps. Some very nice ones were missing. I'm certain this man helped himself and I'm sick about it. I value his wife's friendship far more than the stamps. Dare I say anything to him? What would you do if you were in my place?—U.N.D.

To accuse this man of stealing stamps from your album would probably mean the end of your friendship with his wife.

Call him in a few days and tell him you have a problem. Explain that some of the better stamps which you looked at together, have disappeared. Ask if he knows of a collector who might have duplicates of these stamps—at a reasonable price.

Your telephone call will clue him in pretty cold that you're wise. If he doesn't come through with some replacements (at a reasonable price) he'll at least know that you know.

DEAR ANN: The letter signed "New Yorker" shocked me. It's a tragedy when a father can't stand to have his own children at the dinner table because they make noise and spill things.

A wife who tries to keep romance alive by feeding the kids early and getting them out of sight makes a big mistake. Solid marriages aren't built on candle-light and wine with music in the background. Children who are segregated at meal-time grow up with the uncomfortable feeling that something is wrong with them.

I travel a good bit and evening meals for me are usually $10 feasts at company expense. I'd gladly trade this elegant dining (orchestra included) for a simple meal of meat loaf and cole slaw at home with my wife and two noisy youngsters.—R. G. SUBURBANITE

Parents Tell Daughter's Troth

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph B. Woodward, Houston, Texas, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Betty Ann Mitchell, to Charles John Hagen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor C. Hagen, Spokane, Wash., formerly of Appleton.

The bride-elect attended the University of Texas, Austin, time to time. They've always been considerate and I feel I should reciprocate in some way.

Double ring rites preceding a nuptial high mass Saturday morning united in marriage Miss Janice Clair Jenquin, Seymour, and Neil R. Walters, Racine. The couple repeated their vows in 11 o'clock rites before Rev. Joseph Labno at St. John the Baptist church, Seymour.

Miss Jenquin is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anton J. Jenquin, 348 Lincoln street, Seymour. The bridegroom's parents are Dr. and Mrs. Harry Walters, Racine.

A sister of the bride, Miss Yvonne Jenquin, served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Phronsie Jenquin, sister of the bride; Miss Jean Schwelert, Mrs. David Pedro and Miss Barbara Sommerhaider. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

Wayne Oehrnberger attended the bridegroom as best man. Serving as groomsmen were Robert Kading, Henry Toft, David Pedro and Keith Waullet, cousin of the bride. Eugene Boxtel and the bride's brother, Anthony Jenquin were acolytes.

The newlyweds were honored at a buffet luncheon and reception at the Hotel Seymour after the ceremony. The couple will honeymoon for a week in Wisconsin and Michigan. Upon returning, they will reside at 917 S. Wisconsin avenue, Racine.

The bride is a graduate of Seymour High School and Stout Institute, Menomonie, where she was affiliated with Alpha Psi Omega. She was employed as a home economics teacher in Sheboygan.

Mr. Walters was graduated from Park High School, Racine, and attended the University of Wisconsin. He is employed with the Western Electric company.

convention platform) left the door open to the sales tax; the Democrats have opened the "transom."

The same care to avoid over-commitment was evident in other key sections of the party campaign document. It pledged more aid to worthy students seeking higher education, for example, but it offered a state loan system as a means of providing such help rather than the free grants sometimes advocated by liberals. It made a bid for business support by pledging a more aggressive business development program; the Republican-made industrial development program is skimpy and ineffectual, the delegates said.

The Democrats have historically stood for the political goals of organized labor and thus the pledge to fight "right to work" legislation was expected. But the recent Republican convention declaration in favor of a popular referendum on the validity of the closed-shop contract helped to put more vigor into the Democratic pledge of opposition.

Democrats also repeated their pledge to repeal the Republican-sponsored 1957 law restricting public assistance grants to Wisconsin residents of at least one year. That issue, they are confident, will make votes in Milwaukee and in some of the other large cities.

The farm plank repeats the so-called "Brannan plan" proposals or other campaign years, in a campaign season when the party is depending heavily upon converting traditionally Republican farm districts to the Democratic cause. The Democrats stand for deficiency payments, in cash, to family farm units to make up the difference between free market prices and parity levels to be set by the government. It is the general position of the Wisconsin Farmers Union.

Organized labor was promised repeal of the Catlin act which prohibits use of union dues money for political purposes, a $1.25 state minimum wage law, higher workmen's and unemployment compensation, and a 39-week duration on a permanent basis of the unemployment compensation benefit. (A special legislative session last week put through a temporary 39-week law.)

In convention resolutions the Democrats handled some propositions side-tracked by the platform committee, including: Rejection of a proposal to abolish the peace-time draft, because development of ballistic missiles and other technological weapons "will make a large army of conscripts unnecessary for defense."

Approval of abolition of nuclear bomb testing "in agreement with other nations." Support for reciprocal trade legislation "particularly as an anti-recession program."

The Democrats clobbered the Eisenhower administration and the national Republican party generally during three days of hot convention oratory, but the documentary statements of policy were strikingly free of references to national issues.

"After six years of a Republican administration nationally we believe the voters are eager for a change," said the platform. "They deplore loss of world leadership; economic stagnation; gradual strangulation of the dairy farmer, class government by big business; despoliation and desecration of our natural resources and the frequent denial of basic human rights in all sections of our land."

The platform also tried to put in capsule form its general indictment of the ruling state Republican party: "Wisconsin has lost its position as the great leader among the states. The Republican party in this state is a party of special interests; callous in its treatment of the unfortunate and underprivileged; blind to its opportunities of conserving and enhancing our heritage of resources. A charge in leadership is due nationally; it is long overdue in Wisconsin."

The convention turned out about 1,300 delegates at its peak, but attendance was scant during some of the sessions. Sunday approval of the platform and resolutions was voted by a few hundred.

Choice of Woman Splits Democrats

Long-Time Party Worker Loses Top Job to Milwaukee Negro

BY ARTHUR BYSTROM

La Crosse — (P) — Wisconsin Democrats, who elected a Milwaukee Negro as national committeewoman from Wisconsin, apparently have split their state organization right down the middle.

Mrs. Vel Phillips, 34, became the first Negro ever elected to a top party office in Wisconsin.

Mrs. Phillips Leads In 6th, 8th Districts

Mrs. Phillips carried the Eighth district, of which Outagamie county is a part, 34 to 10. She also won the Sixth district, which includes Winnebago county, 42 to 11. Mrs. Benson, however, won in the Seventh district, of which Waupaca county is a part, 31 to 15.

when she defeated Mrs. Marguerite Benson, 59, also of Milwaukee, at the annual Democratic Convention Saturday night, 597 to 447.

The split was not particularly over the fact that Mrs. Phillips is a Negro but because she beat a woman who for more than 25 years has been a stalwart party worker and campaigner.

Jessen Outspoken

Herman Jessen of Phelps, national committeeman from Wisconsin, was outspoken about the election and made it clear that he thought the delegates had made a mistake.

Jessen, in commenting on Mrs. Phillips' election, said: "It looks like it does not pay anyone to work faithfully for the party. Mrs. Benson has worked faithfully for the party for 28 years, now she gets beat by a newcomer who is not known by 5 per cent of the delegates. The whole thing looks like a beauty or popularity contest."

Philleo Nash, of Wisconsin Rapids, former party chairman, said "Wisconsin Democrats always have been strong for civil rights. This convention is just striking a blow for civil rights."

Others said that the election was a direct slap at southern Democrats. Some delegates saw in it the possibility of causing a serious split in the state party organization.

In the only other contest of the convention, Sam Rizzo, Racine, a labor leader, was elected to the party's state administrative committee. He defeated Albert DiPiazza, La Crosse, 615 to 415.

State Sen. Gaylord Nelson, Madison, candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, substituted for Sen. Jack Clark (D-Pa) as the main convention speaker Saturday night after Clark and other Democratic leaders notified convention officials they could not be here because of the stress of business in Washington.

Father Has Stroke

Nelson's father, Dr. Anton Nelson, 81, Clear Lake, suffered a stroke at a hotel in La Crosse late Saturday night and was taken to a hospital. His condition was reported as satisfactory today.

Among planks of the party platform were proposals for: An expanded school lunch and school milk program, continued on a federal basis, and development of a food stamp and other surplus disposal programs.

More frequent review and audit of highway expenditures. Control of billboards along highways.

Protection for the consumer from artificial coloring of foods and food additives by providing that the burden of proof that the materials are safe should be on the processor, and expanding enforcement powers of the department of agriculture.

Repeal of the law making income tax returns secret.

First 1958 Lamb Pool Scheduled Wednesday

The first 1958 lamb pool will be held at the Equity Feeder farm, Green Bay, starting at 8 o'clock Wednesday morning, Russell Luckow, assistant Outagamie county agent, reports.

Members of the lamb pool committee in charge of the program are Otto Uecker, Bondel, Fred Engel, Seymour and Charles Gomm, Shiocton.

Convention Sidelights

State Democrats to Have More Legislative, County Candidates

La Crosse — Democrats will produce more candidates for legislative and county offices this year than ever before in their Wisconsin party history, according to a "candidate score-board" proudly displayed in the convention hall.

Pat Lucey, state party chairman, recalled that the best the party has been able to offer in the past was about 50 per cent of the number of courthouse aspirants required to fill a state-wide courthouse list of about 568 offices.

This year the number already exceeds that level, and some of the county chairmen have not yet reported to his state office, he said.

Norman Clapp, former Appleton youth and Lawrence college student who is running again for congressman in the southwestern Wisconsin third district, made a hit with partisan delegates here when he hired a donkey and paraded him around the convention town as a symbol of his party and his own aggressive campaign. Clapp unsuccessfully challenged Rep. Gardner Withrow, the veteran Republican incumbent, two years ago.

An amateurish floor demonstration for the absent Sen. Humphrey of Minnesota as a candidate for the 1960 Democratic presidential nomination flopped badly, apparently through lack of planning. The Minnesota Democratic leader is one of the most popular potential Democratic presidential bidders among working Wisconsin Democrats, and is expected to get solid backing in this state's 1960 presidential primary if he becomes a candidate. There is very little doubt among his Wisconsin admirers that he will.

Democratic strategists profess to be encouraged that none of the six Democratic state senators running for reelection this year has an announced Republican rival yet. Democrats coming out earlier than Republicans in typical legislative districts is interpreted as an encouraging sign of Democratic fall prospects.

LaCrosse was a homecoming of a sort for Mrs. John Reynolds, wife of the Green Bay candidate for the Democratic nomination for attorney general. She is the daughter of the late Lawrence Brody, one of the best known lawyers of western Wisconsin a decade ago.

The candidacy of Harry Holloway of Milwaukee for United States senator, as a primary election challenger of Sen. William Proxmire, is not taken seriously by many of the party politicians. The chief reason is that Holloway is generally felt to be acting out of pique. He was a booster of Proxmire in his campaigns and reportedly expected a reward in the way of a job after Proxmire won the special election last year.

Holloway ran for a Milwaukee circuit courtship this year, and was beaten badly.

Proxmire will have another opponent, also of limited vote potential. He is Arthur McGurn of Kenosha, who ran in the primary before without attracting general notice. Newspaper representatives were greeted at the convention with a letter from McGurn announcing that he is mediately before the long-scheduled Democratic party convention.

The Democratic spokesman remarked that the legislative items in the Thomson call were identical to those opposed by him and Republicans when offered by Democrats earlier, and declared:

Change of Heart
"The governor had a change of heart about the merits of unemployment legislation. He now is worried about unemployment, for he is contemplating it after the Nov. 6 election."

The amendments to the unemployment benefit law adopted by the legislature in special session will raise maximum weekly benefits to $42, from the previous ceiling of $38, and a maximum duration of 39 weeks, against a previous limit of 26.

Mission Circle Meeting
Iola — The Bethel Mission circle will meet at the home of Mrs. Arthur Kruse at 2:30 Wednesday afternoon.

Democrats Plan Early Drives In GOP Areas

Candidates Will Announce Soon in 6th, 7th Districts

LaCrosse — Democratic candidates for congressmen are planning early announcements in the usually Republican Seventh and Sixth congressional districts, party leaders of those sections reported at the Democratic state delegate convention.

Kenneth Treager, a Shawano lawyer, and an unsuccessful aspirant once before, will challenge Rep. Melvin R. Laird of Marshfield, the Republican incumbent, in the Seventh district.

The Sixth district candidate will be James Magellas, a Fond du Lac party leader who recently became president of the common council of that city.

Their candidacies are thus far unofficial, but party leaders of the districts were assuring state headquarters officers of official announcements will come soon. Leo Crooks, a Wausau lawyer, had been mentioned as a possible candidate in the Seventh district but he is expected to leave the field to Treager.

Eighth District
A contest for the Democratic congressional nomination in the Eighth district became certain several weeks ago when Mayor Otto Rachals, Green Bay, said he would oppose Milo Singler, Shiocton, for the congressional place on the fall election ballot opposite Republican Rep. John W. Byrnes of Green Bay.

But while Singler came to the convention and took an active part in the proceedings, Rachals did not appear or send emissaries to campaign for him among the sizeable district convention delegation.

Some district politicians guessed, however, that Rachals may prove dangerous to Singler, the unsuccessful 1956 nominee, because of the likelihood of a comparatively heavy Democratic primary election vote in September in Brown county.

Several lesser office nomination contests have already turned up for the Democrats and a state headquarters "candidate scoreboard" which was featured at the convention showed that only in Brown county, in the district, has the party thus far come close to filling out its ticket thus far. According to listings, the Brown county slate is already complete except for a candidate for district attorney, Owen Monfills of Green Bay, the district party chairman, is expected to run but would not comment on his plans here. He was the nominee for the office two years ago.

Freight Train Delays Driver Once Too Often

Bethlehem, Pa. — A stopped freight train delayed a frustrated motorist once too often. A 104-car Reading company freight train blocked traffic for nearly half an hour waiting for a signal to move onto the Jersey Central tracks. Finally the signal came. Freight cars, including the one blocking the street, moved off with the locomotive. The rest remained and traffic began to flow.

Someone "unofficially" uncoupled the freight cars at the crossing.

High-Pressure Peddlers

Toledo, Ohio — Nearby Waterville passed a peddler control law after village solicitor Harry Roebke reported that one encyclopedia crew was "so high-pressure that they gave away the encyclopedias free—then sold the supplements."

vigorous and "durable" and is already stumping the state "house to house."

The visitor to political conventions quickly marks a distinction between the arrangements practices of the Republicans and Democrats. The latter are far freer with "hospitality." At each of the numerous "hospitality" rooms in the convention hotel here, including a generous party room set aside by the state Democratic committee, there were copious supplies of the state's most famous refreshment commodity.

Democrats Try to Make Issue of Special Session

Admit Thomson Stole Their Thunder With Liberal Unemployment Program

LaCrosse — Democratic leaders of the state legislature are puzzled by the problem of making a campaign issue out of Republican Gov. Vernon W. Thomson's special session of the legislature last week which they admit stole some of their political thunder.

Reporting to the party organization convention here, Democratic legislative whips conceded that the Thomson legislative program was an "essentially liberal" one, but complained bitterly that Thomson had lifted it from their own proposals and meanwhile was lambasting them unfairly.

"We were fighting all the time for these essentially liberal bills, while Thomson was firing at our backs with political speeches," complained Sen. Henry Maier of Milwaukee, Democratic minority leader, as he reported on Madison legislative doings last week which achieved a record high authorization of unemployment compensation payments, liberalization of state relief laws, and a urban renewal bill demanded by the larger state cities.

Apparent Envy
Maier remarked with apparent envy of the "barrage of headlines" reaped by the Republican governor as a result of the special session call.

He appealed to newspaper editorial writers to take note of Thomson's deliberate unfairness, as he put it, in "jamming" the special session im-

Democrats Rap Republicans on Urban Growth

Say GOP Doesn't Recognize Problem, Fails in Leadership

By Staff Writer

La Crosse — Democrats will exploit the rapid urbanization of the state and tardiness of the Republican-controlled legislature in attending to urban growth problems, delegates disclosed here in a new platform plank approved this weekend.

The rate of growth of Wisconsin cities will continue to increase, the Democrats declared, and will cause problems in local finance, governmental organization, education and other municipal services.

"The current Republican administration and its predecessors have not only failed to recognize these problems or to provide leadership in seeking solutions to them, but, in fact, have added to the difficulties of local government," the convention asserted.

"Two legislative-citizens in interim committees are now at work, under a mandate of the 1957 legislature, studying urban growth and organization problems and instructed to report to the 1959 legislature."

Specifically, the Democrats promised greater financial assistance to local treasuries and creation of a new state department especially to assistant local governments in their planning.

They also demanded specific legislation dealing with municipal authority in urban renewal programs, and complained that the special session urban renewal law adopted last week was defective.

The platform committee, headed by Sen. Lynn Stalbaum of Racine, also pledged legislative action to modernize county government structure.

Treading carefully, however, in apparent recognition of county boards political powers, the platform merely urged forms of county administration "adapted to the reality of varying local conditions."

State Veterans' Widows to Get Pension Boost

Many Wisconsin widows of veterans who died of service-connected causes will receive increased survivor benefits from the veterans administration as a result of the new military pay bill, Francis Heesacker, Outagamie county veterans service officer, states.

Widow's benefit payments are related to the basic pay of a serviceman whose rank and years of service are the same as those of the deceased veteran, Heesacker said. Since the new military pay bill does not increase basic pay of all servicemen, it will not affect survivor payments to all widows.

Heesacker estimated that 90 per cent of widows entitled to increased payments will receive an additional $1 to $3 per month.

Saturday Marchers Comfortable Sun Warms Audience At Annual Display of Flags, Uniforms

BY BETTY KILICH Post-Crescent Staff Writer

The Flag day parade—an annual display of flags, bands, uniforms, patriotism and pretty girls—snaked through flag-lined streets of Appleton Saturday while thousands of spectators enjoyed the excuse to lounge in the comfortable afternoon sun and watch.

The hour-long exhibition found an audience of all ages along its lengthy route—west on Wisconsin avenue, south on State street and east on College avenue to the Lawrence campus. Everyone loves a parade, the saying goes, and Appleton, both with participants and spectators, is no exception.

Several bands and drum and bugle corps provided marching melodies while the Flag day entourage followed the lead of city officials from Appleton and neighboring communities. Host comely of participants were two Alice in Dairylea princesses who prettily posed in their strapless formal on the back seats of slow-moving open convertibles.

Reserve Men

In stark contrast were the row upon row of army reserve men in their drab greens carrying the tools of their part-time trade—guns. A massive tank, with two sunburned reservists beaming from the turret, followed while other weapons were dragged along behind jeeps and trucks.

The parade brought together a miscellany of units, ranging from the serious to the humorous to the intense to the flashy. Several floats were contrived for the occasion and the always-ready American Legion from several communities turned out with both fun units—such as the popular 40 et 8 engines—and serious displays—such as the truckload of white-bloused, blue-skirted grade school girls from the Legion Junior auxiliary.

Singing Float

Many cars carried uniformed members from the array of women's patriotic organizations in the area, most of them nodding, smiling and waving flags of all sizes out the windows.

From the All Women's American Legion post came seven members, also crisply uniformed, riding on the back of a truck and proudly displaying their identifying banner.

Cub Scouts and Girl Scouts

several cadets and a senior officer.

Other floats were used by commercial firms for advertising purposes.

The most appealing group of marchers, and they were there strictly on an impromptu basis, were four little boys, ages about 8 to 10, carrying small flags and toy guns. Their uniforms, since they didn't belong to any organized marching society, were slightly dirty Saturday afternoon play clothes and they only attempted the marching ordeal for a few blocks on College avenue. They were superb in their innocent intent.

The traffic jam, as spectators attempted to become mobilized at the conclusion of the display, lasted for half an hour at the corner of College and Durkee.

Other floats included one from the VFW auxiliary, a model of the nation's capitol perched on a tufted American flag; one from the North Side Advancement association, an array of flags; and one from Appleton Federated Labor Union, two smiling young girls in formal adorning a flag-decorated flat truck.

Guardmen Start Training Sessions

Camp McCoy — About 2,500 members of Wisconsin's National Guard were in the field today for what officers called an intensive combat training course.

Lt. Col. Roth S. Schleck of Valley Lutheran High school, Milwaukee, said the training program will continue for four days and nights.

Maj. Gen. W. F. Breidster of Milwaukee, said that 96 per cent of the division is in training here or at other stations.

Other Entries

From the Catholic War Veterans came a float depicting a large model of an American flag postage stamp; from the Elks lodge came a model of Betsy Ross sewing on the legendary first flag and, from Fox Valley Lutheran High school, came another Betsy Ross float. Besides a live Betsy, the school also provided two girls in formal to ride along with her. The Civil Air Patrol created a float bearing a model airplane

Ike Blamed for Economic Ills

Reuss Says Lower Interest, More Credit, Tax Cuts Needed

Special to the Post-Crescent

La Crosse — Two Wisconsin Democratic congressmen told the state party convention the Eisenhower administration can be blamed for the nation's industrial and agricultural economic ills.

Speakers were Rep. Henry Reuss, Milwaukee, and Rep. Lester Johnson, Black River Falls, who, with Rep. Clement Zablocki, Milwaukee, were called upon for "reports from Washington." Reuss drew applause when he said he believed the economy needed a tax cut more than anything else, contrary to the conclusion of Democratic congressional leadership.

Reuss charged President Eisenhower with a do-nothing policy on both inflation and the recession. The nation needs now a monetary policy with more credit, lower interest rates, and a prompt tax reduction "to those people who are going to put buying power into the economic stream," he said.

Different Rules

Johnson said the administration is trying to tell farmers to fight for selling in a free market while it applies an entirely different set of rules to big industry. Industry is not being urged to produce more trucks at lower prices, he said.

"Our party views the farm as more than a country factory for food and fiber. It recognizes the farm as a social factor in our life and the family farmer as a source of strength and power in peacetime as well as time of crisis."

Zablocki, senior member of the state Democratic congressional delegation, concentrated his talk on the mutual security program.

The nation must continue this program because the communists have not changed their plans for world domination, and the program makes economic sense, he said.

How good should a good provider be?

Neighbors and friends can't really judge whether a man is a good provider. They can see the house, the car, the gifts. But this is only half the picture.

The other half lies hidden. It may include such things as a deed, savings account books, life insurance. Things to help provide for the family's future.

The man who has the life insurance he needs passes one major test of a good provider. He knows he is meeting a vital responsibility to those who depend on him.

His wife knows it, too. And the bond between them is stronger for this knowledge that they alone possess.

Crews Prepare To Blacktop W In Winchester

County to Put on New Surface Next Month; Widen Road

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau

Oshkosh — Placing of the stone lift on the newly graded and widened County Trunk W in the north end of the town of Winchester is nearly complete, Leon Morrissey, county highway commissioner, indicated Friday.

County crews handled the grading of the road which is being widened to a 22-foot blacktop pad and a 3-foot shoulder on each side. The right-of-way is being widened to 80 feet.

Courtney and Plummer company has the contract for providing and putting the stone lift and to compact it. It also will supply the material for the blacktop surface which will be applied by county crews.

The blacktop pad will not be put on until sometime in July so county crews will put on a pack oil on the lift to control the dust.

Work on MM, G

County crews also have finished grading the short stretch on County Trunk BW which connects W with Outagamie County Trunk B. This also will be resurfaced in July.

Town of Winchester roads are being graded to 4-road road, work on the grading and resurfacing of County Trunk MM in the towns of Winchester and Wolf river will begin in about a month and the work on G in the towns of Vinland and Neenah also is set for later this summer.

The county has completed its work on removing the present concrete pavement on County Trunk E south of Eureka, cutting down three knolls and filling in four low places while widening it for its 24-mile length. A contractor now can come in and apply a 9-inch stone lift and 3-inch hot asphalt pad.

Troubles Being 'Ironed Out' at Sewage Plant

Operating Two New Incinerators 8 Hours Each Day

Menasha — Troubles at the Twin Cities' new $1 million addition to the sewage plant are being ironed out little by little, Arnold Sorensen, plant superintendent, announced today.

The addition isn't expected to go into full operation for several weeks, however.

Sorensen pointed out the two 150 ton incinerators are being operated about eight hours a day. Refuse and garbage from city pickups and from local plants are being burned for testing purposes, he said.

One of the big problems, raising the temperature high enough to burn cans and thick books to ashes, has been corrected, the superintendent stated. Only minor adjustments still remain.

When the plant goes into full operation rubbish and sewerage will be disposed of 16 hours a day.

An engineer from the Combustion Engineering company of Chicago, suppliers of all the equipment for the addition, has been conducting tests since the last part of April. He will remain at the site until all the problems have been corrected.

Fairer Sex Show Skills

All-American Girls Given Plaudits While Losing 4-1 to Menasha Macs

BY HERB VAN DRIEL
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Menasha — Nine women in short skirts representing a baseball team called the All-Americans temporarily took the plaudits away from "Father" on his day Sunday when they showed a good-sized crowd at the Menasha ball park that the female sex also can stand out at America's favorite sport.

Although they dropped a 4-1 seven inning encounter to the Menasha Macs, the champion females put on an excellent exhibition of fielding, hitting and other baseball skills.

The fair sex looked better than fair chasing fly balls, throwing curves and fast balls, making fielding gems and long hard throws to first, and slashing a base hit to the outfield with a man-sized bat.

As with their male counterparts, the All-Americans also made mistakes to show they weren't perfect. When one of the "gals" bobbled an easy grounder a rabid fan blurted out, "you play like a bunch of girls."

Score in Fifth
To get back to the game, which was played with a Mac Eggert on the side of the All-Americans and vice-versa, there was no scoring until the fifth frame when each side tallied a marker.

Jack Konezke of the Macs poked a long round-tripper over

Jitter-Joe's Bests Chieftin's; Merchants in Weekend Games

Menasha — Jitter and Joe's on six hits against the Merchants. They didn't get a bingle until the fifth when they used four to tally eight runs. One run came across in the fourth on a walk and two in the fifth on a double.

Doug Cane pitched a two-hitter in the Oshkosh game. He had a no-hitter going for four and two-thirds innings. The losers made singles in the fifth and seventh frames. They scored their marker in the sixth on a hit batsman, a fielder's choice and an error.

Jitter's collected four runs in the first after two were out. The frame included singles by Carl Springer, "Bud" Geibel, Bob Briscoe, and Earl Gregorius, a double by "Pop" Nielsen and a walk.

The Menashans tallied three times in the fourth on doubles by Gregorius and Geibel and two walks; two in the fifth on a walk, an error and hits by Gregorius and Cane; two in the sixth on singles by Springer and Geibel and Sam Gartzke's double and one in the seventh on Rollie Weiss' one base error, a walk and a fielder's choice.

Geibel and Gregorius each had three hits for Jitter's. Springer had two. Jitter's scored their 10 runs er the right-center field fence with two on in the bottom of the sixth to give the locals their final runs and a 4-1 win. The homer came off Lefty Mort Drury who hurled for the All-Americans.

The females only managed to get two singles from the offerings of Eula Richard, who chucked for the Macs. However, they starred afield, being charged with only one error and making many sparkling plays.

Before the game started the fans were treated to a display of accuracy and skill by the All-Americans. Jean Smith, an outfielder, demonstrated how the weaker sex can make snap-throw throws to the plate from the outfield and Miss Miller breezed a few fast balls and curves to show that women all have good pitching arms.

Accuracy Throwing
In an accuracy throw from home plate to second base the girls' team of JoAnn Berger and Delores Lee threw four of six tosses to the target while "Bud" Koehnke and Darold Eggert only had three pegs caught by Don Gosz who was sitting on second base.

Miss Lee demonstrated her accuracy by pitching two balls at once from the pitchers mound to two different catchers at home plate. She then threw two balls at the same time from home plate with one caught at the mound and the other at second.

According to All-American Manager Bill Allington, who played minor league ball for a number of years, the girls play about 70 games from the first week in June until Labor day. They already have played nine games in four different states, Indiana, Iowa, Missouri and Wisconsin.

Four of the 10 players now traveling with the team attended colleges, he pointed out. The girls range in age from 17 through 28 years.

One of the starring roles of the game was played by John Chapleau, a young second baseman who played no baseball in school but picked it up in the service from which he recently was released. He poked out home runs his first two times up to account for five runs.

Homers also were clouted by the Macs' Tom Konezke, which was back-to-back with one of Chapleau's. Erv Berthold and Del Miller, the latter two from Milwaukee.

Score Five Runs
The Macs' first five runs came in the opening inning after two outs when Koehnke was hit by a pitched ball, stole second and scored on a wild throw from the Milwaukee pitcher who tried to get Clem Massey out at first. Massey advanced when Jack Konezke was hit by a pitched ball and scored.

The two-time winners were Eric Bergstrom, E. Scows; Kathy Hedlund, D. Scows; John Snyder, lightnings, and Dick Dwell in the club division of the X boats.

Bergstrom sailed his First Love home in 1 hour, 18 minutes Sunday afternoon. John Perry's June was second and Sherman Marty's Gamin third. Bergstrom's time was 1 hour, 45 minutes on Saturday. Perry was second and another entry failed to finish.

D Scow Races
Miss Hedlund won the Sunday D race in 1 hour, 31 minutes. Sudro Brown's Going Over was second and the Baldwin's Fantasia third in a field of five.

Saturday's winning time was 1 hour, 30 minutes. Bob Buchanan was second and John Kirchgeorg's A-T-ate third in a five-boat field.

Macs Take 12-10 Non-Loop Victory

Beat Milwaukee Superior Welding; Chapleau Clouts Two Home Runs

BY ALLAN EKVALL
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Menasha — There was more switching in Saturday night's 12 to 10 victory of the Macs over Superior Welding of Milwaukee at the ball park here than in any of the railroad freight yards adjoining the ball park in a day.

The Milwaukee squad used 16 players, changing their pitchers four times, while the Macs, who used only one substitute, kept switching players from one spot to another during the game.

The Macs started strong and had an 11 to 1 lead at the end of the fifth but Superior Welding came up with eight runs in the last three innings to challenge that lead. Some of these runs were the result of Mac players fielding in positions not normally their own.

In the last 1½ innings Catcher Bud Koehnke took the mound for Menasha and his slants were caught by Third Baseman John DeYoung, who also had held down short while Clem Massey was playing center field instead of his shortstop starting post. Keeping track of who was where and when was like the famed baseball line-up story of Abbot and Costello.

One of the starring roles of the game was played by John Chapleau, a young second baseman who played no baseball in school but picked it up in the service from which he recently was released. He poked out home runs his first two times up to account for five runs.

Homers also were clouted by the Macs' Tom Konezke, which was back-to-back with one of Chapleau's. Erv Berthold and Del Miller, the latter two from Milwaukee.

Snyder won Sunday's lightning race in 1 hour, 40 minutes. Peter Hardeen's Onward VI was second and Robert Briggs' Never third. They finished in the same order on let second.

Errors were numerous with 11 against the Macs, four in the last inning on the two strikeouts incidents, and four against Milwaukee. Menasha left five runners on base and Milwaukee had four left on the sacks.

Hanebrink's 2-Run Homer Spills Cards

McMahon Captures Sixth Victory, In Relief, 4-2

St. Louis — U — Harry Hanebrink relaxed his batting grip in the ninth inning Sunday and smacked a 2-run homer that meant a 4-2 victory for Milwaukee over St. Louis.

"I've been strangling that bat all season trying to find a comfortable grip," explained the .169 hitter, who struck out in the eighth inning.

"So when I stepped up to the plate in the ninth inning," Harry said, "I figured I couldn't do any worse and relaxed my grip on the bat. It worked fine."

Fourth Homer
The hit, with two men out, zoomed into the right center field seats for Hanebrink's fourth homer of the season.

The homer also scored Johnny Logan, whose squeeze bunt had scored one run earlier in the ninth.

Hanebrink's homer inflicted the pitching loss on reliever Lindy McDaniel, who had entered the game with one out in the ninth. It was Lindy's seventh loss against three victories this season.

The victory went to reliever Don McMahon, who now is 6-1 for the season. McMahon hurled the final two innings, giving up a single and a walk.

Milwaukee starter Bob Rush held the Cards to three hits before he was retired in favor of a pinchhitter in the eighth inning. The Cards got both their runs in the sixth when Joe Cunningham hit his fourth 1958

Dodgers Trade Newcombe to Redlegs; 5 AL Clubs Deal

Kansas City Has Six New Players

By The Associated Press
Cincinnati's fast-moving Redlegs have Don Newcombe and the American league has a "new look" today after a frenzied final-day swapping spree shortly before the majors' midnight trading deadline.

Newcombe, pitching ace of the Dodgers for nearly a decade but a winless, 0-6 flop in seven starts as a transplanted Californian, went to the Redlegs in an eleventh-hour deal that sent right-hander Johnny Klippstein, first baseman Steve Bilko and cash to Los Angeles.

Schofield to Pirates
In the only other National league trade, St. Louis sent shortstop Dick Schofield and cash to Pittsburgh for utility infielders Gene Freese and Johnny O'Brien.

By contrast, five of the eight American league clubs had a hand in the busy late-hour dealings.

Three major trades — involving Kansas City, Cleveland, New York, Detroit and Chicago — followed on the heels of an earlier deal between the Athletics and Indians.

Ward at First

The Indians, who have only 12 of their 25 players left since Frank Lane took over as the team's general manager last November, now have Vic Power (Kansas City) at first base; Billy Hunter (Kansas City), second; and Woody Held (Kansas City), center field.

The Yankees now have pitchers Duke Maas and Virgil Trucks (both formerly with Kansas City).
Detroit obtained outfielder Tito Francona and pitcher Bill Fischer from Chicago for first baseman Ray Boone and pitcher Bob Shaw.

Klubbers Win, 10-3, To Even FRVL Record

Gerry Hopfensperger Holds Losers To Five Hits

Kaukauna — The Kaukauna Klubbers evened up their Fox Valley Baseball league mark Sunday afternoon by pounding out a 10 to 3 win over Two Rivers.

Gerry Hopfensperger limited the losers to five hits, and his only trouble came in the seventh when some loose ball handling by his teammates permitted three runs to score on only two hits. Wayne Marjusen and Dick Cislser shared mound duties for the losers, with the latter charged with the loss.

Coenen Doubles
Kaukauna opened the scoring in the first inning on a double by Jack Coenen, a double by Dick Mulry and a homer by Dick Busse. The winners added two in the fifth when Coenen was hit by a pitched ball and scored on a double by Don Frank. Frank scored on a single by Dick Mulry.

The winners moved into an 8-run lead with three more runs in the sixth inning. Carl Frank took first base on a walk and advanced to third on a single by Jack Coenen. Don Frank doubled to plate one run, and Dick Mulry followed with a double to plate Coenen and Don Frank.

The losers broke into the scoring column in the seventh when Markusen doubled to open the inning. Cislser reached first on an error and Baker doubled to plate two runs. Baker scored a few seconds later on a wild pitch and an infield out.

The Klubbers concluded their scoring in the eighth inning on a single by Mulry, a triple by Dick Busse and a single by Fran Gerow, good for two runs. Mulry led the 16-hit attack by Kaukauna with four hits in five attempts.

Bill Wood's 5-Hitter Tops Harrison, 17-0

Drives in 4 Runs In First Game With Valley Fair

FOX RIVER VALLEY LEAGUE

Right-hander Bill Wood unfurled a 5-hit shutout in his first pitching effort of the season as Appleton Valley Fair slammed Harrison, 17-0, in the Fox River Valley Amateur league Sunday at Appleton's South Side Athletic club diamond.

Wood, a Kimberly native who played basketball and baseball at Lawrence college before graduating about a week ago, struck out five and walked five while blanking Harrison.

The only batter to have much success with Wood's stuff was third baseman Mueller, who slapped a double and a triple in five trips.

The winners went on top 5-0 in the first inning during which John Landgraf smacked a 2-run double. They had 3-run frames in the third and seventh, another 5-run explosion in the sixth and a single tally in the fourth.

Wood unloaded a 3-run double in the sixth and also singled ending with four runs batted in. Jim Kirkland rapped three singles and Harry Johnson and Hank Emmons each hit two for the winners.

Right-hander Hank Buelow started for Harrison and was charged with his fourth straight loss. He allowed nine runs, walking six, in the first four frames. Van Elzen hurled three innings and Norm McIntyre, one in relief.

Six Harrison errors aided the winners.

Nodarse Stops Cedar Rapids, 6-3, To Give Fox Cities Sunday Split; Nisewonger and Hall Hit Homers

BY MIKE DREW
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

The streaking Fox Cities Foxes, who have been busting out all over during June, moved to within 1 1/2 games of the Three-I league first division by splitting a Sunday pair with Cedar Rapids.

The Foxes bounced back from

a 16-1 shellacking at the hands of the Raiders Sunday afternoon to win, 6-3, Sunday evening.

Tonight, the Foxes dispatch ace left-hander Dick Griffith against the Raiders in search of his eighth victory. Right-hander Bob Botz, who joined Cedar Rapids several days ago, will go after his initial triumph.

A victory tonight, before a Ladies night and Knothole gang audience, would push the Foxes to within a half-game of the current third place Raiders and would give the Fox Cities the series, three games to one.

Nodarse Goes Route
Sunday evening, right-hander Rene Nodarse turned in a winning route-going effort for the second time within six days to even his season's record at 3-3 after a dismal 1958 start.

The victory was the Foxes' sixth in their last seven games, their eighth in 11 starts and evened their Goodland field record at 12-12.

Attendance for the Sunday day-night doubleheader was an excellent 2,338 — 1,337 in the afternoon.

The day game saw the Raiders' 18-year-old bonus left-hander Bob Hendley fire a 2-hitter at the Foxes as his teammates supported him with an 18-hit offense.

It was a different story last night as Nodarse, who had been sick to his stomach Saturday, tossed a 7-hitter, fanning eight of the Raiders and walking four. Six of the hits off the Cuban right-hander were singles and just two of the runs were earned.

Two Hit Homers
Center fielder Jim Nisewonger Sunday evening clouted his fifth home run since joining the club a week ago Saturday. And, right fielder Jim Hall—who sat out the afternoon game—rapped his third homer of the season and his second triple, driving in three of the club's six runs. Nisewonger also had a single.

First baseman Bill Moss accounted for four of Cedar Rapids' seven hits off Nodarse with three singles and a double. Bob "Hawk" Taylor thumped a 2-run homer.

The loser was right-hander Bob Dudley (2-2). Big right-hander Clair Hickman, who pitched the last two frames for the losers, allowed the final two Fox Cities runs.

The Foxes got to Dudley in a hurry with a single run in the first when Don Dantoni reached on an error, stole second and scored on "Tex" Taylor's double to the fence in right center.

Hall's homer in the fifth sailed about 380 feet, over the barrier in right center to give Nodarse a 4-0 lead.

The Raiders broke the ice in the sixth when Bob Knoop singled, and moved around on an error, a wild pitch and an in-

In their homecoming game Saturday night at Goodland field, the Fox Cities Foxes made use of the same baseball assets that had made their recent 4-night stand at Rochester such a howling success.

The surefire combination — Mitchell strong pitching, timely hitting and slick defending — enabled the Foxes to vanquish Cedar Rapids, 5-3, and to lengthen their victory streak to five games.

Gets 13 Strikeouts
Broad-shouldered Gary Mitchell provided the pitching as he overpowered 13 Raiders on strikes and allowed nine hits — only one of which came in a final four innings of superb firing.

Jim Nisewonger's two runs-batted-in gave an added lift to the balanced offense which received aid from each of the first seven men in the order.

Jim Hall and Nisewonger came up with two run - saving defensive jewels, spectacular throws from the outfield.

A cool-night crowd of 722 saw a cool customer, Mitchell, persuade the Raiders to sign the and his second triple, driving in three of the club's six runs. Nisewonger also had a single.

Snarling Tigers Deal Yankees '1st Double Shutout Since 1947

Lary Wins, 2-0, Bunning Triumphs, 3-0; A's, Indians, Chisox Capture Twin Bills

By the Associated Press
The suddenly snarling Detroit Tigers are the hottest team in the major leagues right now, but they continue to be the enigma of the baseball world. How can one team be so futile under one manager and so ferocious under another? It's certainly not that Jack Tighe was a bad manager, or that Bill Norman, who succeeded Tighe a week ago, has been having a magic wand. Still, the figures are there. Under Tighe, the Tigers won 21 of 49 for a .429 percentage. With Norman, they've won six of seven, including a spectacular sweep of the 4-game series from the New York Yankees in Yankee stadium.

Great Plays
Frank Lary and Jim Bunning did the pitching for Detroit yesterday as the Tigers shut out the American League leaders twice, 2-0 and 3-0. Ossie Virgil, Harvey Kuenn and Gail Harris drove in the key runs in the first double shutout the Yankees have suffered in 11 years. Charlie Maxwell, Virgil and Harris came up with spectacular defensive plays to thwart several Yankee bids. And the Tigers, in last place a week ago, are now fifth, only two games behind second-place Boston.

Kansas City smacked Boston down in a double-header, 17-6 and 9-4. Cleveland took two from Washington, 5-3 and 4-2. And Chicago shut out Baltimore twice, 3-0 and 4-0.

Not since Philadelphia's Carl Scheib and Dick Fowler hurled back-to-back shutouts on May 30, 1947, have two pitchers been able to blank the Yankees twice in one afternoon. Don Larsen (5-1) and Bob Turley (10-2) were the victims.

Spearhead A's
Bob Cerv, Hector Lopez and "Chico" Carrasquel spearheaded the Athletics to their double triumph that moved them to within half a game of the Red Sox. Cerv, league leader in home runs and runs batted in, walloped his seventeenth homer, three triples and a pair of singles and drove in five runs in boost his RBI total to 51.

Lopez drove in four runs in the opener and two more in the second game. Carrasquel, obtained Thursday from Cleveland, had seven hits, five in the first game.

Vic Power, traded to Cleveland after the twin bill, hit safely in each game to extend his batting streak to 22 straight games. "Duke" Maas, traded to the Yankees, went the distance in the nightcap.

The White Sox moved out of last place behind pitchers Jim Wilson and Dick Donovan. Wilson faced a minimum of 27 batters in the opener although he gave up two singles to Baltimore. Donovan allowed seven hits.

Mickey Vernon got five hits in Cleveland's sweep over Washington. The 40-year-old first baseman hit a single, double and fifth homer and drove in two runs in the first game. In the second, Preston Ward, later traded to Kansas City, drove in two runs with a single and a home run.

Green Bay Cools Burlington, 7-6, In 9th Inning

By the Associated Press
Everyone likes to hit home runs and everybody likes to see them hit but Rochester is finding out that the big blast won't do it all in the Three-I league.

The Minnesota club, second in the league homer derby, socked two more Sunday but still suffered a 13-7 loss — its seventh straight — by bowing to Davenport's league leaders.

Rick Rogers, Rochester catcher, smashed his sixteenth of the season and Mel Wright added a 3-run wallop but Davenport won the slugfest match with 16 hits. One was a bases-empty homer by Dick Lombardi.

Green Bay, meanwhile, cooled off second-place Burlington 7-6 on a walk with the bases full and two out in the ninth inning. Green Bay left 17 runners stranded.

Earl Robinson started Green Bay's rally with a triple. After two intentional walks, an unintentional one broke a 6-6 tie. Burlington pounded the two homers to Green Bay's two.

Redlegs Bounce Cubs Twice, 7-0 and 4-2

Haddix Hurls 7-Hit Shutout; Giants Thrash Phils, 3-1

By the Associated Press
Harvey Haddix pitched his best game of the year for Cincinnati yesterday as the Redlegs swept a doubleheader from Chicago, 7-0 and 4-2.

The little left-hander permitted only seven hits in the opener in pitching the team's third shutout in a span of five games. The double triumph gave "Burdie" Tebbetts' crew 11 victories in the last 16 games. They are in third position, 3½ games behind the league-leading Milwaukee Braves.

The Braves came from behind to defeat the St. Louis Cardinals, 4-2, and retain their 1½ game advantage over the runner-up San Francisco Giants, who defeated Philadelphia, 3-1. Three Pittsburgh home runs in one inning highlighted the Pirates' 12-1 rout of the Dodgers in Los Angeles.

Loses First
Pete Whisenant paced the Redlegs' first game attack against the Cubs' Taylor Phillips, losing his first after four victories. Whisenant doubled home two runs in the seventh and hit a 3-run homer in the

60 Youths Attend Nats' Tryout Camp

Approximately 60 youths attended Washington's 2-day tryout camp at Goodland field last weekend, according to Otto Bluege, the Senators' chief midwest scout.

None of the players has been signed for the Washington farm in the Rookie league which opens later this month, but Bluege said several of the prospects showed definite promise and will be the subject of further Senator scouting.

New London Wins

Weyauwega — The New London Merchants took advantage of a defensive slump of the Weyauwega Braves here Sunday afternoon to chalk up a 7-2 win in the BABA series.

Although the Merchants were outlived by the hosts, 7-5, they collected the hits when they counted most.

New London's first two runs, in the first inning were gifts. Mel Myers and Claire Baehman scored on a pair of walks, a passed ball and one error. A double by Russell Rusch scored Don Pecard in the second inning and Ed Algiers singled in Dave Berglund in the seventh.

Algiers singled in Pecard, and Baehman singled in Rusch and Algiers in the top of the ninth for New London's closing pair.

Weyauwega scored one run in the seventh as Louie Knoke singled in Byron Purchatzke, who doubled. In the ninth, Purchatzke singled in Roger Wilke, who had reached base on an error.

Tommy Bolt Likely to be Most Colorful Open Champ in Years

Tulsa — It took a dozen years of playing professional golf to teach Tommy Bolt the meaning of the old saying about golf being a humbling game. Once he learned that lesson, Bolt, one of the game's most controversial figures, got "what I've always wanted" — the National Open championship.

He won the title on the sweltering Southern Hills course Saturday by playing the conservative, non-gambling kind of golf that lets the other fellow beat himself. He scored 71-71-69-71—283, three strokes over par.

First Win in '51
Bolt likely will turn out to be the most colorful Open champion in recent years.

Lakers Sign Elgin Baylor For $20,000

Minneapolis — All-American Elgin Baylor, signed by the Minneapolis Lakers for a reported $20,000, was handed the monumental job today of saving the franchise of a team that was once pro basketball's greatest.

It is the kind of assignment that may outreach any heroics the 6 foot, 6 inch star performed for Seattle university, a school he is leaving with one year of eligibility left.

Laker President Robert Short was frank about it:

"If Baylor can't help us back on our feet we're finished. Nobody in the National Basketball association wants us in the league. I'm not sure if some of our own board members do."

Baylor was the Lakers' No. 1 draft choice and therefore the league's because Minneapolis finished in last place last year — practically out of sight — and had first crack.

Baylor averaged 32.5 points a game last season in finishing behind Cincinnati's Oscar Robertson among big college scoring aces.

were John Hurley, Rog Niles, Clair Doerfler, Mike Smock, Jim Tierney and Bob Geenen.

The Dots lead the team race with a 296 points—a bulge of 22 over the Titleists. The True Blues are third with 272.

Hanebrink's Average Reaches .174 4th Homer Boosts Hopes of Braves' Utility Man

St. Louis — A game-winning home run Sunday bolstered the hopes of Harry Hanebrink, a young man who struggles to make himself a handy man to have on the Milwaukee Braves' bench.

His 2-run homer scored the final runs in Milwaukee's 4-2 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Too Much Baseball

Hanebrink, hitting his fourth homer of the season, nudged his meager batting average to .174.

"I'll have to admit it's been most discouraging," Hanebrink said later. "The way I've been hitting, I mean."

"It could be that I'm pressing too hard to make good."

"Then again," said Harry, "it could be that I've had too much baseball all year. I played with Don McMahon in the Dominican league over the winter."

Hanebrink was playing Sunday in place of Wes Covington, the ailing left fielder.

"I have no illusions about playing regularly," Harry said. "After all, left field belongs to Wes Covington."

"But I can't afford to be choosy. I just want to stay up here and help out wherever I can, whether it's in the outfield or infield."

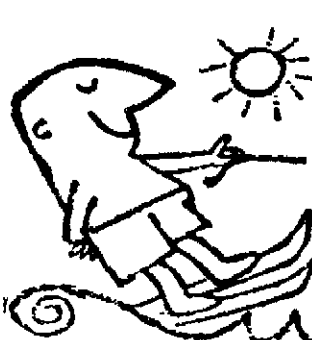

Major League Stars

By The Associated Press

Bob Cerv, Athletics, smashed his seventeenth home run, three triples and a pair of singles, and drove in five runs to boost his league leading total to 51 as Kansas City swamped the Boston Red Sox, 17-6 and 9-4, in a doubleheader.

Pitching Frank Lary and Jim Bunning, Tigers, Larry hurled a 4-hitter and Bunning a 5-hitter as Detroit shut out the New York Yankees, 2-0 and 3-0, for a sweep of the 4-game series in Yankee stadium.

Nodarse Gives Foxes Sunday Split, 6-3

field out. They cut it to 4-3 in the top of the seventh when Moss doubled off the right field fence with two out, and then Bob Taylor smacked a Nodarse offering about 340 feet, over the left field wall.

The Foxes came back with two insurance runs off Hickman in the last of the seventh. Dantoni walked, was sacrificed to second by Taylor and held the base when Pascual singled in the infield. Hall's boomer off the left field boards chased Dantoni and "Potato" home and the fleet Jim scampered to third with his triple.

Financial Success

For the third time in three tries, the Sunday afternoon game was an artistic flop, though it was a financial success.

In a trio of Sunday afternoon home dates thus far, the Foxes have scored a total of four runs to 37 for the opposition. A total of 3,003 fans have watched the three contests.

The 6-2 Hendley was ringing up his third victory in four decisions. He used just 107 pitches in facing 31 batters, flashing razor-sharp control.

The lone hits off Hendley, who is in his first season of pro ball, were a solo home run by Pascual in the fourth, which just cleared the right field barrier a few feet inside the foul pole, and Ron Dibelius' single in the eighth.

Dibelius, the $20,000 plus Menasha baby, who was playing in his first pro game, bounced out twice before grounding his base hit off Dennis Menke's glove into center field.

Starts in Right

Dibelius started the game in right where he handled several chances cleanly, and finished up at third base when Pascual went in to pitch.

Ron who got a nice hand from the crowd during his first time at bat, had one assist in four innings at third.

Hendley walked just one of the Foxes and struck out eight. Dibelius was the lone baserunner besides Pascual to get past second. Three Foxes reached base on errors, Menke $100,000 bonus shortstop, had two of them, the second game in a row in which he erred twice.

Left-hander Don Cameron, the starter, was pegged with his second defeat in three decisions. He allowed five hits and five runs in the first two and 23 innings. Relieved Ernie Stinson again proved no problem, as he was hammered for seven hits and four runs in 2 and 1-3 frames.

Pascual, a pitcher earlier in his career, hurled the last four frames, allowing the final five runs on six hits and five walks. Right fielder Bob Knoop drove in six of the Raiders' runs with two singles, a double and a homer. John Stratton cracked a double and two singles while Bob Taylor knocked in three runs on a trio of singles.

The Raiders came up with three runs in the first on Larry Click's 1-run double and Knoop's 2-run double.

They scored two runs in the second when Don Dantoni erred on Click's ground ball.

A double by Bill Moss and Knoop's single made it 6-0 in the top of the fourth.

After Pascual's homer cut it to 6-1, the Raiders added five runs in the top of the sixth. Taylor, Click and Selinger singled for one run and then Knoop hammered a Stinson pitch over the center field fence for three more. Another came in on a bases-loaded walk to Taylor.

Taylor's single, following a double by Stratton and a pass to Moss made it 12-1 in the eighth.

The visitors collected four more off Pascual in the ninth.

Kimberly — Three runs in the first inning gave the Appleton Legion team a 3-1 victory over Kimberly here Saturday afternoon.

R. Hietpas' 2-run double was the big blow of the first inning for the winners. Dave Bunkleman scored first on three straight Kimberly errors that put Dave Trinrud and Bill Sordel on base and Hietpas' clout followed.

Jeff Vander Velden, Kimberly hurler, had no trouble the rest of the way as he proceeded to strike out nine and gave up only three other passes on 11 balls.

Trinrud was the winning hurler. He was nipped for seven base hits but kept them scattered while striking out 10 and walking five. The winners committed only one error in the field while the Papermakers had four.

Kimberly's lone run scored in the third when Jim Peerenboom walked, went to second on a passed ball and crossed the plate on Marv Smits' long triple. Kimberly stranded 13 men.

hand, who was the leading pitcher in the Class D New York - Pennsylvania league last year, struck out Bob Tano and Don Dantoni to open the game.

"Tex" Taylor then ignited the Foxes' 3-run, pitcher-chasing explosion with his second homer of the campaign—a liner over the right field barrier. Carlos Pascual jacked up his average to a fabulous .429 with a single between third and short. Hall drilled a single past second base, and Nisewonger continued his clutch hitting with a run-producing line single to left.

"Chick" Payne drove a one-hop single to left, scoring the third run. He took second on the throw-in. De Leon was ordered to pass Billy Bone purposely, after which he was relieved of duty. De Leon was later to be charged with his fourth loss (two of them to the Foxes) as against six wins. John Huda, southpaw reliever, got Mitchell on a bases-loaded strikeout and went on to seven more innings of steady 4-hit hurling.

Click Is Doubled

Cedar Rapids mounted a fat threat in the second that came to nothing. With the bases loaded and no one out, Mitchell fanned Wayne Cummings — the first of four straight times he sampled that treatment — by Fox outfielders, Billy Bone and $100,000 bonus baby Dennis Menke to fly to right. Taylor was robbed of two hits by Menke and Stratton.

Springs defeated Des Moines, 6-0, in the second game of Western league doubleheader. Young Trosky walked one batter and hit another.

After making the catch, Hall propelled a clothes-line peg to Payne which doubled Larry Click trying to score.

The visitors got one in the third and only a fine play by a member of the Foxes' snap py new outfield kept it from getting worse. With two out, runners on first and second, Click singled to center, plating a run and leaving men on first and second. Dick Selinger slapped a single to center, but Click was cut down at third on Nisewonger's throw. The put-out by Pascual happened an instant before Bill Miss could cross the plate, thus nullifying a potential second run.

The Foxes made it 4-1 in the fourth on walks to Taylor and Pascual and a bloop single to right by Nisewonger. It was Nisewonger's twelfth RBI in nine games since joining the team.

Each team scored once in the fifth — the Raiders on Click's third straight hit and the Foxes on a walk to Mitchell, a single by Tano and a 2-base error by left fielder "Hawk" Taylor. After Click's hit and an ensuing one by Selinger, Mitchell's fast ball started creating havoc in the Raider camp. He whiffed Bob Knoop to launch a string of four straight strikeouts and eight straight putouts.

Stratton's homer over the center field fence closed out the scoring in the ninth. The fans saw 3-1 league defensive ball at its best. In ad-

ERB PARK APPLETON

Vacation—or any highway driving—is the ideal time to drive your engine clean in a hurry.

Because you "keep at it," highway driving with Keotane is the quickest way to

Drive Your Engine Clean

The shortest way to a Keotane-Clean engine is a long drive on the highway. Don't pass up this opportunity to drive your engine clean in as little as 300 to 500 miles!

BECAUSE Keotane cleans as you drive, the more you drive with Keotane, the quicker you drive your engine clean.

Although results are gradual, in normal stop and go driving you can expect peak results from Keotane in 1,000 to 3,000 miles.

But in steady highway driving, Keotane "unghues" more carbon and lead per mile than in normal driving. Because you keep at it, because you keep Keotane busy doing its job without stopping, usually you can drive your engine clean on the highway in as little as 300 to 500 miles.

Independent laboratory tests prove a Keotane-Clean engine can give you an average of 12.7% more mileage, 14.6% more horsepower output and the performance effect of 3.1 extra octane points.

These and other benefits (see chart) add up to more than 6c extra value per gallon—and at no extra cost to you.

Nothing makes vacation driving as much fun as a clean, smooth-running engine.

NOW HIGHEST OCTANE

The octane rating of Skelly Supreme Gasoline has just been increased again—to make it the highest anti-knock rating in Skelly history!

So before you start that vacation trip, switch to Skelly Supreme with Keotane. Ask your Skellyman for a free Skelly Mileage Meter and prove to yourself you get better mileage when you drive your engine clean with Skelly Supreme with Keotane . . . the cleaning, cleaning gasoline!

Estimated Extra Value Per Gallon To You, Of Skelly Supreme Gasoline With Keotane:
(Based on average current premium gasoline prices in the Midwest)
12.7% average gain in mileage	3.8c
3 octane points extra performance effect	1.0c
14.6% more horsepower output (b.p. saved or added)	.8c
Less gum and cleaner carburetors, faster starts with fewer sputters, longer life for batteries.	.5c
Estimated extra value per gallon to you..	6.1c

The extra value shown above are conservative estimates by our engineers. These extra values are not figured against inferior premium gasolines or regular grade gasolines, but against Skelly Supreme Gasoline without Keotane, the best top-octane premium gasoline previously made.

Only Skelly Supreme Gasoline Gives You 6.1c Extra Value Per Gallon with Keotane

(Registered U. S. Patent Office)

6.1c makes other premium gasoline expensive to use;
6.1c makes any regular gasoline expensive to use;
6.1c makes any "cut rate" gasoline expensive to use.

Seek Exchange of Education Credits

State College Regents Negotiate With U. of W. Faculty Members

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison — A free exchange of credits between Wisconsin state colleges and the University of Wisconsin for graduate students in education is the goal of present negotiations.

State college regents have announced the nomination of a faculty committee representing their ten schools that will work with faculty representatives of the university.

Superior, Stout and LaCrosse now offer graduate work in education leading to a degree, as does the university. Other state colleges have some graduate instruction without degree awards.

Meanwhile the state college regents have indirectly indicated that the construction of a major new classroom building at Oshkosh may be deferred.

Funds Exhausted
 The regents have $1,000,000 available for construction, but campus planners have concluded that the school is now too tightly hemmed in by residential properties and additional land will be required for the new structure. The regents have asked for $200,000 for site purchases from the state building commission, which has exhausted its funds, and won't be able to replenish them until the 1959 legislature acts.

Significant new construction plans are ready at the colleges; however, E. R. McPhee, administrative officer for the system, reports that the first of a series of five new college dormitories can be started in the fall, if money from the federal government is available. It is understood that the federal home and finance agency has money available and will make a reservation for the $3,000,000 loan proposed by the regents. New 200-bed dormitories accordingly will be built at LaCrosse, Oshkosh, River Falls, Stout and Whitewater during the next year, probably in that order.

18 Injured In Accidents Over Weekend

Six Hurt When Auto Hits Rear of Another Sunday Night

County police reported 14 accidents in which 18 persons were injured Saturday and Sunday in rural Outagamie county. Appleton police reported four accidents, all minor.

Six persons were injured shortly before 9 o'clock Sunday night when a car slammed into the rear of another one, knocking it 230 feet into a ditch at Highway 47 and County Trunk S.

County police said Bruce R. Haas, 21, Milwaukee, apparently didn't try to stop his 1956 Buick before hitting the rear of a 1957 Chevrolet driven by Raymond H. Vick, 49, 423 E. Randall street.

Haas' car traveled 178 feet from the point of impact before coming to a halt on the left side of the highway. Vick's car was knocked 63 feet to the edge of the road where it rolled over at least twice for another 167 feet and stopped resting on its side, county police said. Although no one was injured

E. Wisconsin Plot Offered for North Fire Station Site

An 80 by 120-foot parcel at the northwest corner of E. Wisconsin avenue and N. Charlotte street was offered to the city today for a northside neighborhood fire station.

Robert J. Kennedy, of Carroll and Carroll Real Estate, said the unnamed owner is asking $9,500 and would like a reply by July 15.

The tract is the second suggested for the fire station. The first suggestion came from Aldermen Donald Mueller, Clarence Lautenschlaeger and Fire Chief Paul Neumann who told the park board they thought the northwest corner of Erb park is ideal.

The park board has indicated it will resist giving over any park land for other public purposes.

When the offer is introduced at Wednesday night's council meeting, it probably will be referred to both the public safety committee and board of public works for study.

Mixed Trend For Shares

Fractional Gains And Losses During Fairly Active Trade

New York.—The stock market turned irregular in fairly active trading early this afternoon.

Gains and losses of key stocks went from fractions to about a point.

The market's latest drive into new high ground for 1958 stumbled on profit taking.

Rails held a fairly good edge to the upside. Coppers, chemicals and aircrafts broke up an early pattern of gains although some remained well ahead. Tobacco and selected issues performed well. Steels were mixed. Motors leaned to the upside.

Gains around a point were made by American Cyanamid, Du Pont, Goodrich, Douglas Aircraft and Eastern Gas & Fuel.

Small gains were posted by New York Central, Illinois Central, Southern Railway, Baltimore & Ohio, Youngstown Sheet, General Motors, U.S. Rubber, Loew's, Phelps, Dodge and Sears Roebuck.

Off a bit were United Aircraft, Goodyear, Sinclair, U. S. Steel, International Telephone and Commonwealth Edison. Union Carbide dropped about a point.

U.S. government bonds declined.

Change Locations of Three Tennis Classes

Locations of three city recreation department tennis classes had to be changed today because resurfacing projects by the park board were not finished, Recreation Director Elmer W. Grover said.

The class which was to have met at 1:15 this afternoon at Erb park was moved to the Lawrence college courts. So were the classes scheduled to meet at 1:15 Tuesday afternoon at the Pierce park courts.

The 10 o'clock Thursday morning class at the Erb park courts was moved to the high school courts.

Classes will move back to the regularly scheduled locations after this week, Grover said.

Marathon Will Use Turbines To Reerate

To increase the tonnage of dissolved oxygen artificially added to waters of the Wisconsin river even beyond last summer's record-breaking daily addition of 10,000 pounds, the Marathon division of American Can company is modifying four of the seven water-driven power turbines at its mill at Rothschild.

"In non-technical words, we are adding more air intakes and respacing tubes for the purpose of getting more air introduced at the right points in the turbines so that they can whip more oxygen into solution as the river water passes more oxygen into solution as the river water passes through," explained J. R. Salvesen, Marathon's director of research. "Turbine reeration is so new that practically any-

Britain Offers Three Solutions To International Money Troubles

BY WALTER LIPPMANN

Washington — Although Mr. Macmillan came to Washington with plenty to talk about, it is fair to say what has mattered most is not the substance but the manner. He was able to show that the heads of governments can meet and talk without a crashing crisis, without resounding decisions, and without grandiloquent declarations of the great indisputable, but largely undefined, generalities. The omission of the customary rhetoric after a meeting of the prime minister and the president would in itself mark the event as notable.

We know the biggest subject of the talks was posed by the growing anxiety in Great Britain that the recession, in which so much of the non-communist world is involved, could put an unbearable strain upon the reserves of sterling and of the currencies which are needed to finance world trade. There is not now a crisis, and in fact, as respects Great Britain and the sterling area, the reserves are bigger than they have been for a long time.

Three Remedies
What worries the British government is that these reserves are thinner than is safe and prudent, given the possibility that the recession may continue, and bring about an international liquidity crisis, that is to say, a run on the international banking system.

We know too that in the British view there are three remedies which can be chosen. All depend primarily upon the United States, though in all but one of them West Germany and other countries with a hard currency are bound to be involved. One remedy would be to find a way to underwrite, that is to say to reinsure, the reserves of the sterling area. A second remedy would be to enlarge the capital reserves of the International Monetary Fund. A third remedy, which would horrify most Americans, would be to increase the value of the outer world's reserves

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Gabriel and their son, Robert, show the prizes they won in the Appleton Post-Crescent's Memorial day picnic contest. Gabriel owns the Towne and Country market in Appleton. by increasing the sacrosanct price of gold.

The indications are that in the next session of congress, not in this session, the administration will come forward with a program of measures built around the Monetary Fund and, it may be, on another international banking institution.

Other Questions
The general international outlook, as it must have appeared in the Washington talks, is subtly different than it has been in the past. Although the cold war goes on, problems which the western governments have to deal with cannot be reduced to the single issue of the contest with Russia. It is impossible, for example, to have any certain views about the future in Europe until it becomes clear whether Gen. de Gaulle will succeed in pacifying Algeria. Everything must remain provisional until the outcome there is known.

Beyond the big question about the success of Gen. de Gaulle, there looms up, still in the distance, the question of what is to happen in the two Germanys, and between the two Germanys when Chancellor Adenauer leaves the scene.

We do not know what will happen. What we do know is that we are closing phases of the post-war system—as it has developed under the Fourth Republic in France, under Adenauer in Germany, under Truman, Acheson, and Dulles in this country. Beyond the post-war system which is dissolving there is, as yet unformed, the shape of things to come. (Copyright, 1958)
